

BRYAN PROMISES RELIEF FOR FARMERS AND LABOR AS HE ACCEPTS VICE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

Senate's Amendments to Money Bills Vetoed

WALKER'S ACTION DOES NOT AFFECT ORIGINAL BILLS

Amendments, Concurred in by House at Last Session, Unconstitutional, Says Governor.

SOLONS TO BE URGED TO CHANGE METHODS

Governor Will Recommend Earlier Action by House on All Appropriations in Future.

Governor Clifford Walker Monday night vetoed all appropriations made at the recent session of the general assembly the passage of which did not comply with the constitutional law of the state. In taking this action, the governor did not veto the original bills, but only amendments which had been attached in the closing hours of the session under conditions which are said to have been unconstitutional.

Included in the amendments was one providing that the common schools should get half of all state revenue above $9,000,000. This provision was attached to a bill appropriating an additional $250,000 to the common schools, above the $4,250,000 given them in the general appropriation bill. The amendment was added by the senate, but like many others, when it reached the house for concurrence was approved simply by a rising vote of a quorum, whereas the constitution states that all appropriations must receive 104 votes of the house on a roll call.

Clause Cause of Trouble.
The 50 per cent clause for the common schools was included in the appropriations bill last year, but then applied to all revenue above $8,500,000. The additional appropriation given in the house bill this year, of $250,000, was understood to be in lieu of this clause, which had proven a constant point of confusion, both to the school department itself and to the entire financial system of the state, in that it left the revenue totals in doubt until all collections for the year were in.

Other appropriations which are killed by the governor's veto include $15,000 to the Georgia State College for Women at Valdosta; $5,000 to the eleventh district A. & M. school at Douglas; $29,500 for a new ice plant at the state sanitarium at Milledgeville; $45,000 for the entomological department for fighting insect pests; $25,000 to the Georgia State Women's college at Milledgeville, and appropriations to three other A. & M. schools.

This is believed to be the complete list, but inasmuch as Governor Walker gave out his decision to veto the measures at his home late Monday night and the bills had been locked up in the safe at his offices in the capitol, it is possible that one or two may have been overlooked. The governor stated, however, that if any others should prove to have been passed unconstitutionally, he would refuse to sign them.

In taking this action, the governor made it plain that he did not attach any blame to individual members of the legislature for the improper method of passing the appropriation bills.

River of Ashes, Mud and Stones Flooding Canyon

Californians Attribute It to Melting Glacier on Peak of Extinct Volcano.

Sacramento, Calif., August 18.—A veritable river of mud, boulders and ashes, extending in width from a few hundred yards to half a mile, and in some places from 15 to 20 feet deep, is flowing from the mouth of Mud Creek Canyon, eight miles above McClellan, Siskiyou county, on the slope of Mount Shasta, into McClellan river, says a dispatch to the Sacramento Bee today.

Boulders, some of them many tons in weight, are being carried toward the river in the thick streams, the like of which has never been seen before in the McClellan section and whose origin is a mystery, the dispatch says.

Old residents, students of Mount Shasta's formation, "blame" the phenomenon on a glacier, the only one on the McClellan slope of Mount Shasta, which is situated near the peak of an extinct volcano, and which had been exposed to the sun because of the death of snow.

They are convinced that a portion of the glacier has broken loose, slipped down the slope of the mountain and now is melting rapidly.

Sweeping past McClellan at a point three miles distant, the irresistible mass broke the pipes of McClellan's water supply and for two days the inhabitants were forced to depend upon railroad tanks for their drinking water. The Bee's dispatch stated.

RIOTOUS WELCOME IS GIVEN HERRIOT ON PARIS RETURN

Thousands at Station Hail French Premier as Hero for Achievements at London Parley.

BY JOHN OBRIEN.

Paris, August 18.—"The first act of peace has been accomplished," Premier Herriot said a few minutes after he had escaped from the mad welcome of thousands of Parisians who had gathered at the station to see him come home Monday night.

"We have succeeded in reestablishing international accord in spite of the efforts of those who desired to perpetuate hostility between France and Germany," he continued. "I wish emphatically to deny reports that a secret pact was entered into at London. Everything done there was done openly. I also would emphasize that it isn't only what we have actually accomplished that is important, but what we avoided as well."

Herriot denied that international bankers dominated the London deliberations.

Returns as Hero.
The dumpy little former mayor of Lyons who left Paris a mere socialist premier returned to Paris a hero—as the man who, after years of hardship, has led his country toward peace and prosperity.

Herriot and his fellow socialists were prepared for some sort of a demonstration when they reached Paris after agreeing to apply the Dawes

PLANES DAMAGED AS BIRDMEN START GREENLAND FLIGHT

Propeller and Spreader Bar Broken in Strain of Trying to Lift Heavy Load of Fuel.

NEW PARTS RUSHED TO REPAIR PLANES

Lieutenants Smith and Nelson Must Wait at Least Until Thursday for New Start.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Reykjavik, Iceland, August 18.—Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson suffered another setback in their world flight today when they attempted to start on the long-deferred hop from Reykjavik to Greenland. Both their planes were so badly damaged as to necessitate at least three more days' delay.

The accidents today were attributed to the fact that the planes were carrying the heaviest loads of petrol that have been attempted since the start of the flight. Although the sea was calm, the fliers were unable to leave the water.

Carrying heavy loads of fuel, as it was the intention to fly more than 800 miles across the ice-infested north Atlantic to Fredericksdal, the machines refused to leave the water. Repeated efforts were made to rise, and the strain caused the breaking of the propeller bar of Lieutenant Smith's plane, while the propeller of Lieutenant Nelson's plane was shattered.

Already chafing under their forced stay at Reykjavik, this misfortune came as a heavy blow to the aviators, but, accustomed to the uncertainty of flying, they soon became reconciled to further delay, and are now anxiously awaiting the arrival of the cruiser Richmond, which is hurrying here with spare parts for the planes.

It is not expected, however, that the Richmond will reach here before Wednesday. As soon as the cruiser is anchored, the Americans will set to work immediately making the repairs so as to be ready to start again as soon as the patrolling vessels report favorable flying conditions.

PLAN TO REFUEL PLANES AT SEA

Washington, August 18.—Plans are being made to refuel the army's world fliers at sea if such a course becomes necessary in their projected 825-mile hop from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Fredericksdal, Greenland.

A message today from the advance party to the army air service told of the proposal and brought first official confirmation of abandonment of the long search for a substitute landing place on the southern tip of Greenland.

"Angelesalik seems hopeless because of ice," said the dispatch. "Establishment of a floating base to refuel the planes is one of these precautions in the flight to Fredericksdal, officials said, since allowance must be made for possible adverse winds. Every confidence was expressed that the long jump would be executed safely."

Authority for Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian flier, to accompany the American aviators from Reykjavik to Greenland was given today.

Riots Follow Identification Of Murdered Socialist's Body

FASCIST "BLACK SHIRTS" ATTACK NAPLES PAPERS

BY FRANCISCO REA.

Rome, August 18.—Positive identification of the body found buried in a clump of bushes not far from Rome as that of Giacomo Matteotti, murdered socialist deputy, has been followed by scattered outbreaks in Italy, in which blood has been shed and property damaged.

Fascisti answered the criticisms of liberal papers, which have been condemning the methods which made the murder of Matteotti possible, by an attack Monday on the Naples office of Il Mondo, a Roman newspaper. Windows were broken and the crowd moved on to the offices of Il Mattino and shattered glass there.

Fascisti and members of opposing political faiths clashed near Galleria and one man was killed and ten wounded before carabinieri were able to restore order. Bersaglieri were placed in the streets of Naples following the fascist attack on newspapers there. Throngs of Neapolitans cheered the troops as they restrained the black-shirted raiders. Matteotti's body will be taken from the mortuary chapel, about 25 kilometers from Rome, where it was identified by relatives and a dentist, to the dead politician's birthplace. Three trains will compose the funeral cortege. First, there will be a train load of carabinieri, then the funeral train proper bearing the body and mourners. Behind this will follow a third train containing guards. The route has been planned to circumvent Rome, where it is feared serious disorders might accompany the demonstration of grief which socialists certainly would accord their dead leader.

The police are active in breaking up crowds which gather in various Italian cities to express anger at Premier Mussolini's government over the Matteotti murder. Such meetings have been forbidden in Rome, and although the socialists disregard the prohibition and assemble, the police so far have prevented the speeches which socialist leaders had announced they would deliver.

MANY PROPOSALS TO HIKE SALARIES MADE IN COUNCIL

Police, Firemen, Health, Sanitary, Construction and Garage Workers Affected.

The movement started several weeks ago to increase the pay of firemen and policemen was broadened to include workers from several other city departments when council met Monday afternoon.

Aldermen Claude, Buchanan and Jesse Armstrong proposed $10 a month wage raise for policemen and firemen.

Councilman Harry York followed with a plan for a graduated increase for these two departments.

Then council was asked for a flat $20 a month schedule raise for the health and sanitary departments.

This was followed by a petition for "adjustment" by municipal garage employees.

Money Is Sought.
The Buchanan and Armstrong measures were presented with the approval of the salaries, fire and police committees of council, and, on motion of Alderman Buchanan, were referred directly to the finance committee, which is to "find the money."

The York schedule and the sanitary and health department schedules were referred to the salaries committee, as was the municipal-garage petition, which was introduced by Councilman J. Allen Couch, and Alderman Buchanan's construction department proposal.

Councilman York denied on the floor of council that his schedule was prompted by "political" motives, declaring that he did not even want the salaries voted until after election.

All authors of salary-increase plans agreed that proposals should be made in ample time to give the finance committee opportunity to find sources of revenue with which to pay whatever increases are made and also to consider them with a view of giving

WALKER PLANNING SURVEY OF NEEDS OF STATE SCHOOLS

Governor Anxious to Place Educational Institutions in Georgia on a Firmer Basis.

SPECIAL COMMISSION WILL BE NAMED SOON

Members Will Be Asked to Visit Every College in State and Suggest Revenue Sources.

Governor Clifford Walker announced Monday night that in the near future he will name a special commission to investigate conditions and needs of all Georgia state educational institutions and to draw up recommendations as to the best method to be used in raising funds for their support.

The proposed commission will be composed of members of the legislature, prominent business men and leading educators of the state. The size of the commission is yet uncertain, but it will number more than a score of Georgia's most outstanding citizens.

Personnel Not Decided.
While the personnel is not yet decided upon in full, it is certain that the speaker of the house and president of the senate will be asked to serve.

W. Cecil Neill, who was speaker of the last house, is a candidate for next year, with little doubt of election. President George Carroll will not be back in the senate next year as a result of the Georgia system of rotation of senators among the counties of a district. However, he will be asked to serve on the commission and give the benefit of his long legislative experience and advice.

J. Howard Ennis, who was chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, will be another member. Captain Ennis considered a certainty as president of next year's senate.

Council Orders Public Hearings On Milk Measure

Ordinance Committee Will Consider Dr. Duvall's Ordinance.

Public hearings on the W. B. Duvall ordinance, requiring pasteurization of all milk sold by middlemen, were ordered by city council Monday afternoon in referring the paper to the ordinance committee of council.

The author consented to this course, saying that he had been requested to do so after he had announced his first intention of demanding immediate passage in order to throw additional safeguards around the health of Atlanta infants without further delay.

The ordinance would permit dairymen to deliver direct from dairy to consumer, but would require the middlemen, grocer, soda fountain operator, meat marketman, milk depot proprietor, or other intermediary between producer and consumer, to have the milk pasteurized at his own expense. The middleman would be required to label each bottle with his own name and with the date of pasteurization.

This arrangement, according to Dr. Duvall, would prevent the sale of stale milk and would reduce danger of sale of an infected product.

The ordinance committee is to hold a public hearing at a date to be announced this week by the chairman, Councilman Horace Russell.

$10,000 IN JEWELS STOLEN OFF WIFE, CHARGE OF MORS

'Kid' McCoy Pronounced Sane by State Alienists Who Examined Former Ring Champion in Jail.

Los Angeles, August 18.—Charges that jewels valued at $10,000 were stolen from the body of Mrs. Theresa Mors, either just before or after her death, were made by attorneys for Albert Mors, the woman's former husband.

This accusation, combined with the report that the state's alienists had pronounced Kid McCoy sane, featured the day's investigation of all murder with which the former fighter is charged.

Mors has been granted letters of administration which permit him again to take over the antique shop of Mors, Inc., which had been given to his former wife in their divorce settlement. The charges that the jewelry had been stolen were made when the petition for award of the shop was made in court.

Wore Many Jewels.
Mrs. Mors is said to have been wearing a pearl ring, brooch and wrist watch on the night of her death. These have not been recovered and their absence resulted in the charges that she was robbed.

Mrs. Mors had made him presents of jewelry at various times, but he denies knowledge of the specific articles mentioned by Mors. Monday, the report of Doctors Victor Parkin, Paul Bowers and Louis Weber.

PARTY'S PLATFORM PRAISED AS BROAD AND PROGRESSIVE

Democratic Nominee Pays Eloquent Tribute to Running Mate, J. W. Davis, as True Progressive.

30,000 HEAR GOVERNOR IN NEBRASKA STADIUM

Republican Administration Last Four Years Rapped for Failure to Heed Middle Class Needs.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lincoln, Neb., August 18.—Before a large and colorful gathering of long-time friends and supporters and national and sectional party leaders, Governor Charles W. Bryan tonight formally accepted the nomination for vice-president by the democratic party and laid down in unmistakable terms the principles and issues upon which he will go before the people for victory at the polls.

In the center of the football field at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium, Governor Bryan made his speech of acceptance, following the lead of his party's standard-bearer, John W. Davis, who a week ago chose the open air for launching the democratic campaign at Clarksburg, W. Va.

Governor Bryan definitely opened his campaign with a promise to the progressive farmers and wage-earners that the democratic party would stand as a unit in seeking solution of their difficulties.

Harrison Notifies Bryan.
Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, who delivered the notification address, also acclaimed the democratic organization as the only one to which the progressive elements could look for direction and leadership and asserted the presidential race would be between the two major parties.

The vice-presidential candidate praised his party's platform as "broad, strong and progressive enough to justify the support of those who believe in equality before the law," and declared the democrats have presented a program of progressive policies "for which the party stands as a unit, without the intervention of faction, bloc or section."

He pledged his full support to Mr. Davis and declared both he and the presidential candidate are in harmony with the platform upon which they will fight for electoral support.

Speech Is Radio-cast.
In addition to the thousands who thronged the stadium, persons in all parts of the country were given an opportunity to hear the speeches by radio. A long-distance telephone wire transmitted them to Chicago, where they were broadcast by the Chicago Daily News station WMA.

Stations WFAV, University of Nebraska; WOAW, Omaha, and KFKN, Hastings, Neb., also radio-cast the speeches.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, of Jordan, Mo., democratic national committee woman from Missouri, presided, after being introduced by Clem L. Shaver, the party field marshal. The latter

The Well-Dressed Woman: What Are Her Problems?

Numerous questions confront the woman who desires to be modishly and immaculately appareled at all times, according to Martin Amorous, Jr., famous Atlanta designer who is creating gowns for "Miss Atlanta."

In the first article of a series written by Mr. Amorous for The Constitution, in which he describes "Miss Atlanta's" gowns, the designer answers many fine points of distinction that arise in women's minds with reference to the important matter of dress.

JOHN W. DAVIS CLUB IS FORMED

Prominent Atlanta Democrats Laud Nominee at Session Monday—Support of Georgia Pledged.

Hearty indorsement of the democratic candidate for president, and a pledge to support and further his campaign throughout this section of the country, marked an enthusiastic meeting Monday night of more than 100 leading democrats of the city, which resulted in the organization of the "John W. Davis for President" club, and the election of Walter McElreath, Atlanta attorney and boyhood friend of Mr. Davis, to serve as its president.

Lions Will Honor "Miss Atlanta" Today

Lions of Atlanta today will honor approval of Miss Estelle Bradley, selected as "Miss Atlanta" in The Constitution's tournament last week.

By invitation of Press Huddleston, president of the Lions' club, "Miss Atlanta" will be special honor guest of the club today at its regular weekly luncheon in the rainbow room of the Ansley hotel, where she will tell how it feels to be the city's reigning beauty.

Launching a drive that will carry her better-skelter from one store to another and from one civic gathering to another for the next two weeks, Miss Estelle Bradley, selected "Miss Atlanta" in The Constitution's 1924 beauty tournament, Monday began her preparations for her trip to Atlantic City.

The little 17-year-old blonde beauty made her first appearance in the shopping district at noon Monday, beaming smiles from the rear seat of the new and luxurious Franklin sedan placed at her disposal by the Franklin Motor Car company of Atlanta.

Selects Her Shoes.
Miller's shoe store unpacked numerous boxes of feminine footwear from its commodious shelves, and, with Martin Amorous, Jr., directing, "Miss Atlanta" chose certain striking models to suit her costumes. Others were not in stock to suit the exact requirements, and the management of the shop immediately wired an order for the manufacture of these shoes to fit the exact measurements of "Miss Atlanta's" dainty feet.

Next "Miss Atlanta" visited southern sales headquarters of the Spencer Corset company in the Atlanta National Bank building, where experts measured her for the corset which will most effectively set off her magnificent figure.

So much care and attention to minute details was insisted upon by the Miller company and the Spencer company that

BIG COTTON OIL MILL MERGER IS COMPLETED

Memphis, Tenn., August 18.—Organization of the National Cottonseed Products corporation, a $12,000,000 concern, recently formed for the operation of a dozen or more cotton oil mills in Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky, Missouri and Illinois, merger of which was announced last week, was completed today with the election of Ed Cornish, Little Rock banker, as president, and Joseph Newburger, local cotton man and manufacturer, as chairman of the board.

In addition to the presidency, Mr. Cornish holds the title of general manager of the corporation. With the assistance of W. F. Bridwell, of Memphis, Ernest Rice, of Dyersburg, and W. S. Roberts, of Memphis, he will have charge of mill operations. Officials of the corporation pointed out that the concern is strictly a southern enterprise, embracing mills in the five states named. It is composed of cotton oil men who are not interested in the syndicate recently formed in the east, they said. Consolidation of the oil mill interests in this territory, it was said, was effected with a view to more economical production and distribution of cottonseed oil products.

plan to Europe's troubles. But, in addition, they had agreed to evacuate the Ruhr on a given date and perhaps the folk at home would like that. The thousands who crowded about the railway station gave Herriot such a welcome as has not been equaled since the last of the war heroes marched through the Arc de Triomphe. Literally, the squat figure of the socialist leader was mauled and passed about for congratulatory back slaps from his admirers.

It is difficult to believe that the chamber of deputies can refuse to uphold a man who has been accorded such a tremendous tribute. And if the French parliament agrees to the Ruhr evacuation, the success of the London conference is almost assured.

Crowds overpowered police. Two lines of policemen locked arms to form a lane through which Herriot and members of the French delegation could pass from the train to their motors. The crowd would have none of such restraint. Smothering scattered boos and whistling with a swelling, rhythmic roar of "Vive Herriot," the crowd swept the police aside, crowded around the official party and proceeded to pelt Herriot with congratulations, flowers and friendly hand pats. Thousands of persons sought to shake his hand.

For blocks traffic was at a standstill while Herriot, a little embarrassed, very much surprised, and far more happy, remained laughing and perspiring in the center of his milling admirers.

The premier's hat tumbled to the floor and was trampled. His clothes were awry. Dignified members of his cabinet tried to form a protective ring about him, but it was useless. Journalists tried the same thing, but the crowd shoved them aside.

Swept From Feet.

the premier and his bodyguard were swept from their feet. But for the crush in front of them, they would have tumbled to the bottom. The police were overwhelmed and, despite the pouring rain, the crowd that waited outside the station was as noisy and happy as those who had gained the shelter of the station roof. "Vive Herriot" and some not so pretty shouted "vive" at the premier and waved bouquets of flowers. Many of these women climbed to the tops of their automobiles to gain a glimpse of the arriving statesman.

No one showed to spite his neighbor. It was simply a gay, spirited crowd that let its pent up feelings loose.

Herriot's ovation was the greatest any public man has received in France since Clemenceau, President Wilson and Lloyd George left Versailles. In an instant at the conclusion of the peace treaty, Herriot himself was amazed at what he meant. "I only carried out my election promise," the premier remarked.

Royalists tried to start a counter-demonstration with their boos and whistles. They madly the loyal Herriot supporters, who rushed at a group of royalists shouting "Down with Herriot!" and forced them to change their yells to "Vive Herriot!" Police rescued the royalists, and a downpour of rain began, the danger of a riot passed.

After Herriot's remarkable reception, it is apparent he will receive a vote of confidence from the chamber of deputies and that the Dawes settlement will be approved.

OFFENBURG EVACUATED BY FRENCH TROOPS

London, August 18.—French troops have been withdrawn from Offenbourg and the evacuation is complete, according to a Central News dispatch received here from Berlin.

Offenbourg is a manufacturing city in Baden on the Rhine river. It was occupied by the French along with many other towns in that district soon after troops entered the Ruhr valley.

HERriot WILL FACE FRENCH CABINET TODAY

Paris, August 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Premier Herriot will face the cabinet tomorrow and the chamber of deputies Thursday, reinforced by an unmistakable expression of popular rejoicing over the settlement of the London conference, and the return of France's foreign policy to a real peace footing.

The premier will have to endure a debate in the chamber lasting two or three days. He will probably have to answer a number of already important interpellations are scheduled and, in addition, eight prominent orators are on the list for speeches. Herriot does not desire to cut short the discussions.

After the chamber debate the senate must be dealt with and former Premier Poincaré will take the floor. His speech, while likely to be formidable, is not likely to cause the upper house to deviate from the chamber's course in voting confidence, which already is taken as a foregone conclusion even among the premier's would-be successors.

When this business has been concluded the government will probably adjourn parliament until October, letting internal reforms, ratification of the Lausanne treaty and the agreement with the United States for reimbursement of the costs of the American Rhine forces go over.

In the meantime Premier Herriot's return is hailed by the general councils of the three departments of central France with the passage of congratulatory resolutions praising his attitude in London.

MACDONALD URGES SPEEDY EVACUATION

London, August 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, today sent letters to Premier Herriot, of France, and Premier Theunis, of Belgium, urging that France and Belgium take every possible step to evacuate the Ruhr in less than the one-year period agreed upon at the international conference.

"In the opinion of the British government," Mr. MacDonald said, "continued occupation may prejudice the working of the Dawes plan and may jeopardize the arrangements agreed to at the London conference."

Premier MacDonald's letter, written Saturday after the four-hour session in which Premier Herriot, Chancellor Marx and Premier Theunis reached an agreement on the Ruhr evacuation, says that in view of the notes exchanged between France, Belgium and Germany, the three nations primarily concerned, it is necessary that the British government's position as the prime minister frequently explained it during the latter days of the conference, be reiterated in writing. The letter states:

"The British government has never recognized the legality of the Ruhr occupation nor the interpretation of the clauses in the treaty of Versailles upon which their allies acted. They hoped that, as the Ruhr occupation was undertaken solely for economic purposes, it would be withdrawn as soon as the Dawes report was put into operation. . . . The occupying powers and Germany have agreed to accept an arrangement whereby the occupation shall not extend beyond a year, but may be terminated earlier."

"The British government is with-out prejudice to the position which it and their predecessors have taken with regard to the interpretation of the treaty, but is anxious to see the Dawes report in operation and simply note the agreement and urge most strongly that the governments concerned should take every possible step to hasten the evacuation because, in the opinion of the British government, continued occupation may prejudice the working of the Dawes plan and jeopardize arrangements agreed to at the London conference."

GERMAN EDITORS MODERATE IN DISCUSSING CONFERENCE

Berlin, August 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—With the return of the general delegates from the London conference, there is a conspicuous moderation in the tone of German discussions on the outcome, and political experts are busy figuring out the party line-up in the reichstag when the government action is up for approval or rejection.

The members of the cabinet are inclined to view the parliamentary situation with a degree of equanimity born of the conviction that, once the opposition forces are given a complete opportunity to examine the balance sheet brought back by Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann, and allowed to contemplate the economic and political effects involved in a disavowal of the present government, they will be less inclined to maintain the intransigent attitude reflected in the current editorials.

Marx Holds Conference

The chancellor entered upon a series of conferences with the reichstag party leaders this evening and will continue them for several days, or until the reichstag is convened.

"This was the first post-war conference in which the words 'vanquished' and 'victory' were dispensed with, and throughout our negotiations we were never made to hear one disagreeable word," a participant in the London conference observed today. He praised the spirit of equality that prevailed and said that the closing session was marked by a display of extreme cordiality on all sides. One of the outstanding achievements of the conference, in the opinion of the German delegates, was the adoption of the principle of arbitration which, it is believed, will mean a simplification of Germany's reparations difficulties.

Dr. Stresemann objected to a report quoting him as saying that Germany had obtained "a 98.25 per cent success." He asserted that so far as the conference itself was concerned, the Germans had secured 100 per cent results.

Hope For Rapid Evacuation

The evacuation of Offenbourg and Appenweire by the French today is held in official circles as an earnest of French intentions to live up to the agreements entered into with the German delegates, and it is believed that this initial action will have a beneficial psychological influence on German opinion.

Official quarters are firm in their belief that progress in the evacuation of the Ruhr will be made in rapid stages and that the French and Belgian troops will have disappeared before the expiration of the one-year term fixed by the conference.

JOHN W. DAVIS CLUB IS FORMED

chambers of city hall, were Edgar Watkins, first vice president; Mrs. Ernest C. Bell, secretary; and Eugene R. Black, treasurer. Resolutions adopted by the body Monday night called for a vice president from each congressional district in the state and an executive committee composed of the 25 officers of the club and 25 other members, to be appointed by the president.

A number of enthusiastic speeches were delivered by prominent delegates and an eloquent tribute was paid Mr. Davis. Support was pledged to the principles of the party, and the speakers declared Mr. Davis a man "fitted for the honor and for the office."

Alex Smith, prominent Atlanta attorney, was among the first speakers. He declared that "the time has come for intelligent, right-thinking people to get together and save the country by putting Mr. Davis in the president's chair."

Mrs. Alexander Alexander, national democratic committee woman for Georgia, spoke briefly, declaring that she has been assured that the woman's vote in Georgia will rally to the States, and acclaiming him of "stainless character."

Mrs. Alexander declared, but are interested in the "man."

"I can pledge the vote of Georgia womanhood," she concluded.

Mr. McElreath opened the meeting by declaring that the purpose of the "John W. Davis for President" club is to let the national committee and the country at large, know that the people of Atlanta and Georgia are interested in the success of the democratic party and interested in the "great man chosen."

"There never was a time when our nation needed such an administration as John W. Davis can give us as we do right now," Mr. McElreath declared, "and we intend to stand behind him."

Congressman W. D. Upshaw enthusiastically endorsed Mr. Davis, declaring that though he had been an original McDowell booster, was a loyal democrat, and "indorsed the 34th article of the national constitution."

"It is a refreshing observation," Congressman Upshaw declared, "that John W. Davis is not a Wall Street lawyer, but a man of the people. He is a broad street, and he should be no more blamed because a great banking concern on Wall street has recognized his ability than a Peachtree street lawyer should be blamed because he has clients who live on a street of less reputation."

"I congratulate the Atlanta Federation of Trades," the speaker continued, "in its refusal to indorse La Follette as an organization. Those who do favor the turbulent senator from Wisconsin are honest, of course, but I must believe that most of them have forgotten the fact that by a vote of 26 to 3 La Follette was condemned by the legislature of his own state for 'favoring Germany' instead of the United States during the world war."

Congressman Upshaw concluded by declaring that if "Turbulent Bob," "Cautious Cal" and "Handsome John" were put upon the stand and allowed to speak for "three or thirty" minutes to decide the question, "Handsome John" would be the next president of the United States.

"Is Great Leader"—Sims. Mayor Walter A. Sims declared himself glad to have a part in the formation and operation of the club, heartily indorsing Mr. Davis, and expressing the belief that the democratic party had selected one of the greatest leaders in the United States.

122ND REGIMENT AT ISLAND CAMP

was fed before 1 o'clock. Regular army officers, attached as instructors to the regiment, marveled at the precision of the regiment and asserted the work would compare favorably with any regular army outfit.

Col. Cox Pleased

Colonel Charles H. Cox, present adjutant-general of Georgia, and commanding officer of the regiment, stated at the first officers' meeting at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon that he had accompanied many national guard regiments to camp, but in all his experience "Atlanta's own," considering it has been in existence less than eight months, this fair to become one of the greatest guard regiments in the nation.

Early Monday afternoon practically all duties of pitching camp had been completed and officers and men alike donned bathing suits and enjoyed a surf bath. Squads of men were beginning baseball practice for the annual camp game and other forms of athletic diversions were provided for every one.

Begin Work Today

At break of day Tuesday men will begin the intensive training schedule prepared some days ago, and which instructors assigned to the regiment, will be followed, in most practical and intensive ever attempted by a young national guard company. Company commanders received final instructions this afternoon, making it plain that no deviation from the regular schedule will be permitted except for providential hindrances.

For the next two weeks this schedule will be followed, and it is expected that an indictment against McCoy will be returned.

Repulse Shock to Vanity

"He could not stand to be turned aside by a woman over whom he thought he had complete control," they will tell the jury. "When Mrs. Mors told him she was through with him, it was a shock to his ego. Intensified by drunkenness and inflamed pugnacity, this shock caused murder."

His actions were those of a man whose inhibitory powers have been broken down by shock and booze. They were not the actions of an insane person.

Repulse Shock to Vanity

District Attorney Keyes, after a check of Mors' alibi, which appeared to be broken by the statement of James Lawney that Mors had visited his garage early in the morning of the murder, was satisfied Mors had no further knowledge of the crime. Mors' declaration that he retired at his hotel shortly before 10 p. m. Tuesday, was supported by the manager of the hotel.

Early Wednesday, however, Mors did go to Lawney's garage, and it was in making his way to his home with Mrs. Mors' death, authorities believe.

MRS. MORS' ESTATE WORTH OVER $200,000

Los Angeles, August 18.—Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, who died here last Tuesday night with a bullet in her head, was a wealthy woman, with whose death Kid McCoy, ex-pugilist, is being held on suspicion of murder, left an estate of $125,000 and $80,000 in life insurance to her husband, Al. Mors, it was revealed here today.

The police abandoned search for a moving-picture actor, a pugilist, in a moving-picture report, after having confessed, early Wednesday that he killed Mrs. Mors. This man, apparently, is a myth, say the police.

McCoy's Eighth Wife Put Out of House

Los Angeles, August 18.—Dagmar Dalgren, eighth wife of Norman Selby, "Kid" McCoy, Monday visited the apartment in which Selby and Mrs. Theresa Mors were living at the time of Mrs. Mors' death, and created such a disturbance that police escorted her to her home.

Miss Dalgren, an actress and professional dancer, had been drinking, the officers declared. Her performance on the front porch of the apartment house consisted of screams, loud announcements that she was "Kid" McCoy's eighth wife, and a subsequence fall down the steps, in which she carried with her a number of potted plants.

allemists, indicated that McCoy, during their tests, showed no signs of insanity. He has an "exalted ego," an exaggerated opinion of his own importance, but no trace of insanity, the physicians stated. Their full report will be presented to the county grand jury Tuesday, when it is expected that an indictment against McCoy will be returned.

A part of McCoy's mental attitude was that he was irresistible to women, the allemists have agreed.

"Miss Atlanta" Takes Role Of "Columbia" in Pageant

Miss Estelle Bradley, the most beautiful of the 500 queenly beauties in The Constitution's recent tournament, who was selected as "Miss Atlanta," is to be the "Columbia" of the closing pageant of the city of Atlanta municipal playground season at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Announcement of Miss Bradley's consent to take this role in the pageant was made Monday afternoon by Mrs. Hunter C. Smith, playground supervisor, and L. L. Wallis, general manager of parks.

With a prominent Atlanta man, who has not been named, impersonating Uncle Sam, Miss Bradley, as Columbia, will occupy the throne in the central part of the huge rustic stage to be built in the Piedmont park athletic field and will review the costumed dancers from 17 Atlanta playgrounds.

Will Present Folk Dances

Seventeen folk dances of as many different nations, each interpreted by a different group of pretty young Atlanta girls, will be presented on the big stage before the throne of Uncle Sam and Columbia.

Miss Bradley will appear in a costume of red, white and blue worked out with the patriotic motif of the Stars and Stripes. She will wear a crown flashing with 13 jewels, one for each of the original 13 colonies, and will carry a gold-burnished torch of knowledge as a scepter.

The "throne room" is to be built in rustic style of hewn logs and pine-thatched roof like to those of the original pioneers who made America. Flanking either side of the stage on which the events of the pageant are to be held will be rustic bowers in which the participating groups will be sheltered from the sun.

Working on Dances

Each of the playground directors has been working diligently for several weeks to perfect the dance of the nation which has been assigned to her playground. Mothers of the girls, and the girls themselves will take part in the pageant, have been making the quaint and fetching costumes that will be worn to carry out the international idea. The colorful dresses with the rustic background of live greenery will make a brilliant and impressive scene.

Barber's band has been rehearsing the dance music for several weeks.

Gifts Are Presented

"Miss Atlanta" made her shopping tour Monday wearing a handsome dinner ring in onyx and diamond which was presented her by Elman's, the well-known jewelry establishment, and the Bradley Knitting company, with remarkable promptitude, presented her with a handsome sweater made especially for her.

In addition, demands for measurements of all kinds were showered upon the tournament management, a fact which gives additional evidence that "Miss Atlanta" will live in a constant rush until her departure for the national pageant.

TOURNEY BEAUTIES TO ACT AS MODELS AT GOWN DISPLAY

While Miss Estelle Bradley, who has been chosen "Miss Atlanta," is filling appointments with clamorous civic organizations and Atlanta shops, other beauties in the recent Constitution tournament will make their appearance at the A. M. Robinson company in connection with Merchants' week beginning today.

The Robinson company announced Monday that it had arranged for Miss Frances Pilling, second winner, and Miss Sara Bradley, sister of "Miss Atlanta" and one of the final 12 in the tourney, to wear gowns of a popular fabric handled by the concern and designed by Chavariat, of Paris, one of the world's leading couturiers.

The display will be held from 10 to 11 in the morning and from 8 to 4 in the afternoon from today through Friday. The event is an interesting feature of Merchants' week, and many people are scheduled to attend both to witness the display and to see the two beautiful tournament participants who will act as models.

AVIATION FIELD URGENT. The necessity for a municipal aviation field in Atlanta is becoming more acute daily.

The other day a pilot associated with Dr. Coad, government expert in charge of the boll weevil laboratory at Tallulah, La., came to Atlanta to discuss with a committee the airplane calcium arsenic demonstrations which are to be made at Athens on August 26. He stepped into his plane at Tallulah and in a short time landed in Montgomery, where he left his plane and came to Atlanta by rail.

There is a magnificent field at Montgomery, listed in the air routings. He wanted to fly through to Atlanta but found from the air directory that this city had no listed landing field.

The demonstration of arsenic dusting from the air will employ three ships, and it was proposed that they come to Atlanta, pick up a load of state officials and prominent citizens interested in the demonstration in each car and carry them on to Athens for the field work. But Atlanta has no aviation field. Athens has.

General Mitchell, assistant chief of the United States air service, is just back from a tour of the world. In the first interview given out by him on his arrival in Washington he declared that in his judgment an established air line between New York and Peking, China, would be a reality within the next three or four years, and of course, between New York and London and Paris and other European capitals.

He declared further that commercial air transportation on a general scale in this country would be a reality equally as early.

Already the air is being platted into routes very similar to the trunk highways.

Just as cross-country motoring has become as general as rail transportation so will air motoring become equally as general in the early future.

It is the opinion of all students of aerial development that within five years a business man may hop off in his plane from Atlanta in the forenoon and eat his dinner in New York, and possibly transact his business and return to Atlanta that same night by night travel, which is even preferable to day flying.

While these developments are taking place, and the aerial mail service is being pushed into all sections of the country, and while air maps are being made and routes defined, Atlanta is necessarily left out because she has no flying and landing field.

This is a matter of urgent importance, and is being accentuated by developments almost every day.

FOSTER'S BOY GROWS UP. Edgar M. Foster, for many years business manager of the Nashville Banner, has bought the Clarksville (Tennessee) Leaf-Chronicle, for his son, M. Stratton Foster.

The Leaf-Chronicle is one of Tennessee's oldest newspapers. The new owner, Edgar M. Foster, has been in business harness long enough to become one of the outstanding figures in the business management of southern newspapers.

He will, of course, not disassociate himself from the Nashville Banner, in the management of which he has been a guiding influence for many years. This new investment is made for his son, who is said to inherit the keen ability and business judgment of his distinguished father.

Certainly the people of Clarksville are to be congratulated in having such an able young man assume the control of a newspaper which for more than a century has been a household word in every home in Clarksville.

AN ALARMING TENDENCY.

Another former governor of a great American commonwealth is involved in alleged shady transactions by which thousands of investors are supposed to have lost millions of dollars.

This is just "another," for the news columns have been overcrowded in the past few months with sensational stories of governors and ex-governors moving along financial paths alleged to be crooked. It is really startling, and is the cause of a great deal of comment as to the reason.

This time former Governor C. N. Haskell, of Oklahoma, is involved. Judge Knox, of the United States district court of New York city, Saturday appointed Judge Julius M. Mayer and Joseph P. Tumulty receivers of the Middle States Oil corporation, which was built into a $95,000,000 corporation by Haskell.

The New York World says:

"It was charged in this and in a previous move for receivership that under the Haskell management the company's assets dwindled $77,000,000 in a single year; that Haskell had taken important books of the company to Paris and left them there, and that the company's affairs had been manipulated, along with those of the Southern States Oil corporation, another Haskell property, to pull Haskell out of a $5,000,000 hole in which an attempted coup in Southern States left him."

The company has had a curious career. It was incorporated in 1917 as a holding company for various other companies, including two or three small railroads and some producing oil wells, pipe lines, etc.

It was listed on the New York Stock exchange. The stock had a par value of $10 a share and advanced to $74 in 1919. It subsequently dropped to $11 and fluctuated rapidly and mysteriously. It is now quoted at $1.25 a share, representing, of course, enormous losses to investors.

It is not the fate of this stock or the men associated with it, or the great army of losers, however, that concerns us in this discussion, although it is always painful to see the public held up for great sums of money in worthless, or even highly speculative and feverish promotions. It is the alarming tendency of the times for men of high political standing, who have gained a public confidence through public service, to abuse that confidence. Only a few weeks ago the governor of Indiana, at the time, was sentenced to the Atlanta penitentiary for crooked stock jobbing.

Former governors of more than one state—some from the south—have within the last few months been in the courts under charges of irregular transactions.

The tendency is astounding; and it is time for the public to rise up and demand that prominence gained through high public office shall not of itself entitle one to the confidence of the investing public any more than any other business citizen; and that no business institution shall appeal for investments that have not stood the test of the most rigid blue-ribbon laws that can be passed without interfering with or embarrassing legitimate trading.

The governor or former governor who takes advantage of his high standing to swindle the people ought to be dealt with even more severely than the average private citizen of average obscurity.

And now a native African missionary is coming over to convert the American heathen.

Killings at the crossings seem only to encourage the dare-devil auto to take another chance at a railroad train.

This old quotation well applies to the alienists—

The Indianapolis News speaks of "an antidote for 'white mule,'" but it frequently happens that the man who swallows it does not live to need an antidote.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

"The Sunbeam."

"The Sunbeam" is its title, and it is issued occasionally, in magazine form, by The Baltimore Evening Sun, and the present hand-drawn illustration, a special occasion, the entire contents being the work of Henry Edward Warner, who has a national reputation as a poet and humorist.

The edition is a tribute to the poet from his appreciative friends among the writers and artists of the daily press, and when the editor of The Sunbeam asked Mr. Warner for a personal selection of twenty-five or thirty poems representative of his work, it seemed to him that he was in a forward—"an impossible task," confronted, as he was, by thousands of verses from columns he has for years contributed to many daily newspapers and magazines.

"Frankly," he says, "I don't know which of mine are good, bad or indifferent, so I've just chosen my eyes and grabbed a handful."

For Henry Warner knows what he is about when he writes down for the poems that he dreams, or that he himself to him at the daily desk, or in the thronged streets of the city, or in the morning groves and meadows where the broods ripple and the birds make merriest music.

When the poet of The Sunbeam gets away from the din and dust of cities to "green fields and running brooks," he sings a free song, such as this—

"An old friend, an old boat,
A rattling old automobile,
An old pair of shoes, or anything old,
And the solid old ground beneath my feet,
With the nice, loose fit, and the comfort of it,
Of the thing that was new of yore;
For nothing is right... too doggone tight
Till you've had it a year or more!"

And his love of the home and the simple life is well expressed in these lines from "The Rocket and the Rose"—

"We long for wings
That we may soar to Greater Things—
To deeds of mighty worth;
And when we're high in the sky
And seen our imprint on the fly,
We tumble back to Earth."

In these twenty-five or thirty poems, of such wide appeal, there are so many good things that one is tempted to quote from cover to cover of the attractive little booklet; but that wouldn't do at all!

It wouldn't be fair to "Sunbeam" readers, who will take the good book home with them—not merely for an evening's enjoyment, but as a library friend from a friend to them all.

When we're high in the sky, for the most part in "lighter vein," until this fine little bit from "Fate"—

"Could I retrace my baby steps
And view with baby eyes
The world that I have learned so well,
Would knowledge make me wise?
Yes... Yes... No! Perhaps?
O Fool!

What bootless thoughts! Alack!
Better to pick my road ahead,
Than dream of turning back!"

And the rollicking love song is not neglected, for there's one on "The Microbes," as follows—

"There are microbes in kisses—
Come kiss me again,
For the joy that's in loving
Atones for the pain.
There are microbes in kisses—
Come, love, you and I
Might as well be contented,
So kiss me and die!"

In all that he writes Mr. Warner sustains a reputation as "The Minister of the Press," and this friendly "Sunbeam" group of poems will most certainly add to that well-earned reputation, and to the circle of his admirers, readers and friends.

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE WALLS OF CIRCUMSTANCE

WE MAY STAND OR BE CAST DOWN surrounded by difficulties and obstructions through which no opening seems possible.

Our own hand we may say to ourselves: "Here I take my stand long enough to think and to resolve upon a plan able to lift or lead me out of this predicament."

And I am both surrounded by walls of circumstance.

But within us lies every possibility to escape these walls and to make ourselves factors of worth in the world.

And so with ceaseless toil, the slightest hand we may say to ourselves: "We may wear away the walls of circumstance."

Today's paper announces the death of a United States senator who taught in a small school in Michigan when the writer of this Talk attended when a boy. This leader in the affairs of a great nation was born very poor. He did anything he could get to do. He worked his way through school as a stable boy and was not admired by the bar until he was 30 years old. Yet he rose to eminence and usefulness—brushing aside the walls of circumstance and attaining high honor by living a life of service.

If we paid much attention to our handicaps we should not get very far.

Success is forged from handicaps. Often it takes a frank talk from old man Failure to make us appreciate how possible success is to us.

It is the force of circumstance that compels us to sit up and ponder and to think out accurately just what manner of human beings we are, anyway.

Every time you bore through the walls of circumstance, you build the walls of your character just that much stronger.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

"The play ran late, the audience early."

There is always a touch of the comical human among shoppers in department stores. It was during a bargain-counter rush at one of the big stores on Thirty-fourth street, a harried little man was on the fringe of the crowd waiting for his Amazonian wife who had charged into the maelstrom. Finally she emerged, the little disheveled, but had the prized bargain package she sought.

"Now that you have it, what are you going to do with it?" he inquired with a show of unaccustomed bravado.

"I'm going to smack you over the head with it," she snapped. And that is exactly what she did.

The New York dance hall is the rival of the old-time saloon. The founder of "The Door of Hope" declares that about 70 per cent of the fallen girls of Manhattan were tramped up by him. Other moral investigators say one of the greatest perils of the city is the light fantastic, check-check.

The dance halls and bistros are open areas of collusion and seduction. These are the places young folk with small purses must go to spoon and find amusement. The "instructive" and "educational" ideas are to appeal to the deplorable instincts that were formerly satisfied by Raineau law hotels and Venus pedestals.

Many of the larger dance halls are patronized by the "hostesses" for 25 cents a dance. They get 50 per cent of the amount they make. Many of them carry on private bootlegging on the side. It is all a species of disguised prostitution.

The "hostesses" are the strange types New York breeds. There is an apathy is only marked by the jaws that chew gum incessantly.

Ashton Stevens, the Chicago critic, saw a poor play in New York and wired his paper this succinct slam:

"The play ran late, the audience early."

FITZGERALD HITS 30.04 CENTS AVERAGE.

Fitzgerald, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—Today's tobacco sale reached the top with an average of 30.04 cents per pound for 50,000 pounds. W. D. Turner & Son, of Ambrose, Coffee county, sold 10,000 pounds at an average of 30.04 cents per pound, receiving the $10 in gold from the chamber of commerce for best pile of tobacco on market today. They got 64 cents a pound for a 300 pound lot.

D. L. Thigpen, W. C. Mann, and R. O. Jones, of Appling county, also made large lots of and lung for which an average price of over $30 a 100 was paid. W. D. Turner, of Windell, N. C., stated that he has been over 10 years in the tobacco business in that state, but that this is the first year he ever received such large returns, receiving $38 per hundred for 3,800 pounds of tobacco.

In addition to lively tobacco market, cotton is beginning to be ginned here to capacity of three local ginning companies, 500 bales a day being ginned. It is generally believed that 7,000 bales will be gathered in Ben Hill county and probably 10,000 handled through local warehouses.

VALDOSTA SELLS 135,000 POUNDS.

Valdosta, Ga., August 18.—A total of 135,000 pounds of tobacco was sold on the local market today bringing an average price of slightly over 23 cents. W. M. Creech, a grower living near Ray City, sold several large lots of tobacco aggregating about 10,000 pounds. Prices ranged from 30 cents to 40 cents per pound, averaging about 33 cents and netting him a little less than $3,000.

HAZLEHURST AVERAGE 25.45 CENTS A POUND.

Hazlehurst, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—The tobacco market continued to bring good prices for bright leaf tobacco here today this market selling 51,942 pounds at a general average of 25.45 cents a pound. Some of the sales today consisted of second and third crop and had it not been for that the average would have been much higher. Farmers continue to pour into Hazlehurst from several different counties with the leaf.

BLACKSHEAR SALES BIG AVERAGE JUMPS.

Blackshear, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—Today was another big day on the Blackshear tobacco market. All warehouses were brimful when sales opened, and the local market was experiencing a shudder when it was whispered that the whole Blackshear fleet had been wiped out. This report so strongly affected the morale of the troops that hourly bulletins were issued. Later, of course, it became clear that the battle had been a British victory, and today the German navy was not coming out again until the surrender.

Fulton Cause of Increase In Georgia Tax Valuation

Decrease in Tax Digest
for Balance of State More Than Offset by Fulton Gain.

Fulton county will this year be solely responsible for any increase in the tax digest of the state, according to Henry J. Fulbright, state tax commissioner.

The assessed valuations of real property in Georgia, according to Mr. Fulbright, shows a drop of approximately $11,000,000 for 140 counties, exclusive of Fulton. When Fulton county's values, which show an increase of $11,000,000 in round figures, however, are considered, the decrease is changed to an increase of about $20,000,000.

Mr. Fulbright stated Monday that, with adjustments yet to be made in several counties, and with approximately a score of counties yet unassessed, it was impossible to give any exact figures on the comparative tax values for the current year, as compared with last year's.

However, he pointed out that, figuring on the basis of a $20,000,000 increase for those counties, including Fulton, which have reported to date, and allowing for the same pro rata decrease which has been found in the rest of the state for those counties as yet unassessed, it may be safely estimated that the digest, when complete, will show an increase of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. In arriving at this increase it is also figured that some of the counties which have already reported, may show higher taxable values after the assessments are adjusted.

In any event, whatever increase the final digest shows, will be solely because of the magnificent jump made by Fulton county.

Fourteenth Century Painting Is Stolen From Brooklyn Home

New York, August 18.—Art collectors, dealers and museums throughout the country have been wowed by New York police to be on the lookout for a painting, said to be a fourteenth century product of Jacob Bassano of "The Last Supper," which was stolen from the Brooklyn home of Dr. Zoltan Edwards recently. The painting is valued at $25,000, and is insured for $5,000.

The work of cutting the canvas from its frame was so neatly done that the police believe the theft was committed by professional art thieves.

Have You Settled The School Question?

Here's How Leading Men and Educators Settle It.

If I were a young man or woman and had my choice, to graduate from a literary college and stop there, or to graduate from a business college and stop there, I would choose the latter.

The drill, information and education I received in the business college I count as having the greatest practical value of any I ever received.—Hon. L. J. Gage, ex-treasurer United States.

Without a thorough and practical business education a business man (or woman) is like a ship at sea without compass or rudder.—Hon. W. T. Harris, Ex-Com. Education, U. S.

ELECTROCUTION BILL SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

The electrocution bill, which provides for substituting the electric chair for the gallows, became law Monday morning when Governor Walker signed the measure.

The bill calls for establishment of a death chamber and installation of an electric chair at Milledgeville. Immediate steps will be taken to put the new law into effect, it was announced in the office of the prison commissioner.

Among the other bills signed by Governor Walker Monday was one authorizing investigation of the United States' home, to amend an act establishing a school for colored persons as a branch of the state university, and to create a new board of trustees for that institution; to appropriate $10,750.75 as an emergency appropriation for the emergency establishment of the state; to amend a statute levying a tax on dealers in cigarettes and cigars; and to amend an act to incorporate the city of Cornelia.

OFFER LOW RATES TO TOBACCO BELT AND GUARD CAMP

Offering an opportunity to visit the heart of Georgia's newly-developed tobacco-growing sections, as well as the encampment of the Georgia National Guard, now at St. Simons Island, the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic railway announced Monday its latest special excursion of the season.

The rates offered include round-trip tickets from Atlanta to Brunswick for $5.00, and from Atlanta to Waycross for $5.00. The excursion will include a visit to the national guard encampment, and is particularly desirable as a resort for the summer months, with its easy access by automobile, as well as by the pleasant steamer down Oglethorpe bay, past the famous "Marshes of the South."

Waycross and Moultrie lie in the heart of the Georgia tobacco belt, and the special rates bring an opportunity to visit one of the most rapidly-developing sections of south Georgia.

Corresponding rates for points on the A. R. & A. in north Georgia and Alabama.

DeKalb Grand Jury To Consider Charges Against Negroes Friday

Decatur, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—Charges of assault and highway robbery against Howard Hinton, of 342 Park avenue, South Atlanta, and Sam Trimble, of Constitution, Ga., both negroes, will be considered at a special session of the DeKalb county grand jury Friday, it was announced from the office of Sheriff J. A. McCurdy tonight.

They will answer charges of robbery in connection with the holding up of B. B. Goldberg, of Capital avenue, Atlanta, and of a father wishes to give his son or daughter a legacy better than houses, lands, silver or gold, let him give them a practical business education.—Hon. J. A. Bryan-Hutton, President, Bryan-Hutton Business College, 164 Whitehall, N.Y. 787, Atlanta.

Both negroes are alleged to have confessed to Sheriff McCurdy and his deputies, who with Sheriff R. J. Reagan, of Clayton county, and hastily organized posse, began a search for the hold-up men, after being tipped off by Officer West, of Fulton county, who happened by as the men are said to have been forcing Goldberg to abandon his car at the point of a gun.

The negroes are said to have fled. Trimble was arrested first, and he implicated Hinton, officers said. The negroes are in Fulton county jail for safekeeping. They will be given a speedy trial in the event true bills are returned against them, court officials stated tonight.

NEW RULES ADOPTED BY SECURITIES BOARD

Two new rules affecting application for sale of stock in this state were adopted by the Georgia securities commission Monday morning. One provides that stock issued for payment of copyright, formulas or other tangible assets must not exceed one-third of the common stock of the company, nor will applications be considered from companies issuing preferred stocks for any consideration except cash or its equivalent. No promotion stock will be allowed, and total expense of stock sales must not exceed 15 per cent.

The other new rule adopted provides against consideration of an application from a Georgia company issuing non-par stock, as the commission holds that there is no provision in the Georgia law for these companies obtaining charters from superior courts.

BANK OFFICERS FACE COURT ON WEDNESDAY

Fairburn, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—Judge Gus H. Howard, of Atlanta, will preside at the adjourned term of Campbell county court here Wednesday morning, when cases against officers of the defunct Bank of Campbell county will be tried.

The bank was forced to close its doors by state bank examiners several months ago. Judge John B. Hutcheson and Major Claude C. Smith, judge and solicitor of the Stone Mountain circuit, have been disqualified.

John R. Hutcheson, of Douglasville, former solicitor general of the Tallapoosa circuit, assisted by Judge E. J. Eagan, of McDonough, and Judge J. Wilson Parker, of Fairburn, will be prosecuting counsel, while former Governor Hugh Dorsey, of Atlanta and J. F. Goughly, of Fairburn, will conduct the defense.

Indictments against the officials ranged from embezzlement to receiving funds after the bank became insolvent. C. R. Harvey, former president of the bank, will face the embezzlement charge. A total of 17 indictments was returned by the Campbell grand jury.

OCCUPATION OF HAYTI CALLED UNJUSTIFIED

Williamstown, Mass., August 18.—The military occupation of Hayti and the Dominican republic cannot be justified either by invoking the Monroe doctrine or by any accepted principle of American foreign policy, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, concluded in his roundtable conference on Latin-American affairs at the Institute of Politics today. He found the explanation for the occupation in large measure in the circumstances of the world war.

"The evacuation of the Dominican republic which has just been completed," he said, "should be followed as soon as possible by the evacuation of Hayti."

Outlining the conditions under which the Russian soviet government grants concessions to foreigners, C. J. C. Quinn, secretary of the committee on foreign affairs of the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared that it was a "rather amazing fact that the Russian government has adopted the policy of according to foreign states and foreign enterprises exemptions from the general law and special rights which may be deduced to her own nationals."

"The great natural resources of Russia are the heritage of the Russian people," he said, "and we will allow for their interest. We will allow foreign capital to help us in the development of those resources which we possess or unexplored to develop ourselves, but we will give no monopolistic concessions. We will allow a reasonable, even a large profit, because we know capital will not otherwise come to our help. But if it does not want to come on this basis, we will do our best to develop our resources ourselves."

Contrary to the belief that the success of the Davies plan would work harm to the industries of other countries, Quinn declared that the German goods, Professor Allyn A. Young, of Harvard, declared that the export trade of the United States would be benefited by the payment of reparations, since the raw materials for some of Germany's most important industries came from the United States.

LARGE COTTON MILL PLANNED IN GEORGIA

Ball Ground, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—The statement was authorized here today that J. B. Roberts, president of the Roberts Machine company, and a prominent capitalist, and associates, some of whom are New England textile men, will begin shortly construction of the big concrete dam and a large cotton mill.

The full details could not be learned today, as Mr. Roberts is in Atlanta, and it is said it will be one of the largest mills, when completed, in Georgia.

Mr. Roberts has recently developed a tremendous water power on his properties near here, the big concrete dam having been completed within the past few weeks. The lake created is one of the most attractive bodies of water in Georgia, and will be used for recreation purposes in addition to its service as a great storage reservoir.

SAUSKY BOOSTED FOR CHATHAM JOB AS OPPONENT QUILTS

Savannah, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—In personal tribute to the self-sacrificing work for the state port bill done by Gordon Sausky, Marvin O'Neal, a candidate for ordinary of Chatham county, formally withdrew today from the race, and endorsed Henry McAlpin, incumbent, is also a candidate.

Mr. Sausky was some months ago presented with a $500 silver service for his work for the port bill, by a group of business men. Today, in a letter to the executive committee chairman, Mr. O'Neal pays high tribute to his work, and declares that he has been devoting himself to patriotic cause to the neglect of private and candidate's business and he makes an earnest plea for support of the hard worker for the state port measure.

WAYCROSS WILL POST SIGNS TO AID TOURISTS

Waycross, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—President H. D. Reed, of the Waycross Motor club, after a conference Saturday with the officials of that organization, has decided upon the wording of and location of the signs, which the city manager has agreed to have made and erected to assist tourists finding their way through the city to different highways.

The Motor club has noticed during the last two seasons that many of the tourists seem at a loss to find the way out of the city to the road leading to the next town. These signs will be put up within the next two weeks.

GOLUCKE UNOPPOSED FOR LEGISLATIVE JOB

Crawfordville, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—Alvin G. Golucke, attorney of this place, has been unopposed as a candidate to represent Taliaferro county in the next general assembly. Last Saturday was the closing date for the announcement of candidates, and no candidate announced against Mr. Golucke.

Four years ago Mr. Golucke was unopposed as a candidate for the state senate, and he represented the nineteenth senatorial district, composed of the counties of Greene, Taliaferro, and Warren, in the 1921 and 1922 sessions of the general assembly. In 1924 he offered for the house, and the closing of entries without any candidate announced against him confirms his selection for the house of the next general assembly.

Many Entertainment Features on "Merchants" Week" Program — At- tractive Displays.

A steady stream of merchants poured into Atlanta Monday from all parts of the southeast to take part in the celebration of Merchants' week, which began here Monday under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association.

That the event would surpass any similar occasion in Atlanta's history was the opinion of officials Monday who expect 500 merchants in the city before Thursday—the last day of the celebration.

Monday was taken up with registration of visitors to the various exhibits which have been prepared by Atlanta merchants. A series of entertainment features has been arranged and elaborate preparations for receiving and entertaining the visitors have been made.

This evening the merchants will be entertained at a theater party at the Lyric theater. Wednesday afternoon there will be a trip to Stone Mountain by automobile, and while the visitors are viewing the Confederate memorial refreshments will be served. Thursday afternoon another theater party is scheduled.

NEW ORDINANCE CLEARS PAVING PETITION JAM

Signatures to petitions for paving will remain on the petitions henceforth unless a signature is in a written explanation for withdrawing it, and, if he does that, his signature will not be recognized as making up a majority of signatures in a written explanation for withdrawing it, and, if he does that, his signature will not be recognized as making up a majority of signatures in a written explanation for withdrawing it.

Council made those new regulations effective Monday by unanimous adoption of Councilman John A. Williams' ordinance, aimed to stop confusion over street paving petitions.

The ordinance also imposes a fine of $200 or imprisonment for 30 days on any representative of any contractor or paving material manufacturer who misrepresents the truth in persuading a signer to withdraw his name from a petition.

If one petition for one type of paving is secured, with a majority of the front footings on the street signed to it, only that type of paving can be laid on the street, under the ordinance.

The signer can withdraw, making the first petition invalid because of the lack of a majority of the front footings, but no other petition can be made valid because the majority, which signed the first petition, will be disqualified by the ordinance from signing any other petition.

Councilman White's paper had the approval of the streets committee. It was explained that some confusion has arisen in the past by rival paving material concerns each trying to get its material named in a petition, including signatures of the other to withdraw and sign a new one.

The ordinance goes to Mayor Walter Sims for his signature before it becomes effective.

PASTOR GILBERT WILL DESCRIBE JAP EARTHQUAKE

The Adventist camp meeting, now being held near the junction of the Stewart avenue and Belmont car lines, continues to draw large audiences at each service. President S. Booth rendered his report at the Friday morning session of the conference. It showed a gain of 121-3 votes, and in membership a gratifying growth in all departments of the church in Georgia.

Pastor F. C. Gilbert preached Saturday morning and Sunday night to large audiences. Pastor Gilbert was converted to Christianity from Judaism 36 years ago and for 30 years has had charge of the Jewish work of the denomination. Many Jews in all parts of the country have accepted Christ as a result of his labors with them, it is stated. He has recently returned from an extended trip to the Orient, being in Yokohama when that city was destroyed by earthquake. He will deliver a lecture Friday night on the Japanese catastrophe.

Professor A. W. Werline, of Washington Missionary college, Washington, D. C., arrived Sunday. He will conduct a series of lectures in the Junior college, Ooltewah, Tenn., and recruit students for their respective institutions.

Bishop W. H. Heckman, who has the supervision of the southeastern district, is conducting an institute each morning at 8:30 for the ministers and workers of the Georgia conference.

Drs. J. R. and Gerald Mitchell, together with Drs. C. F. Curtis and A. F. Snyder, all of Atlanta, are rendering valuable service to the departments and to the encampment in general.

ALLEGED SLAYER FOILED 2ND TIME IN ESCAPE EFFORT

Montezuma, Ga., August 18.—(Special.)—Houston McGuire, charged with the murder of Robert Maynard, a negro taxi driver, was captured at 12 o'clock today by Chief Walters and Officers Heald and Heath, of the Montezuma police force, after escaping from the Dooly county jail in Vienna.

When it was known last night that he had escaped, officers of Macon county were notified and a search started. The officers went to the home of an uncle, John Greene, who lives on the Levia plantation near Montezuma. The house was surrounded and searched and the fugitive was finally located by officers in the loft of the house. He offered no resistance and was returned to the jail in Oglethorpe to await trial in Dooly county next week.

The bank was forced to close its doors by state bank examiners several months ago. Judge John B. Hutcheson and Major Claude C. Smith, judge and solicitor of the Stone Mountain circuit, have been disqualified.

John R. Hutcheson, of Douglasville, former solicitor general of the Tallapoosa circuit, assisted by Judge E. J. Eagan, of McDonough, and Judge J. Wilson Parker, of Fairburn, will be prosecuting counsel, while former Governor Hugh Dorsey, of Atlanta and J. F. Goughly, of Fairburn, will conduct the defense.

Indictments against the officials ranged from embezzlement to receiving funds after the bank became insolvent. C. R. Harvey, former president of the bank, will face the embezzlement charge. A total of 17 indictments was returned by the Campbell grand jury.

OCCUPATION OF HAYTI CALLED UNJUSTIFIED

Williamstown, Mass., August 18.—The military occupation of Hayti and the Dominican republic cannot be justified either by invoking the Monroe doctrine or by any accepted principle of American foreign policy, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, concluded in his roundtable conference on Latin-American affairs at the Institute of Politics today. He found the explanation for the occupation in large measure in the circumstances of the world war.

"The evacuation of the Dominican republic which has just been completed," he said, "should be followed as soon as possible by the evacuation of Hayti."

Outlining the conditions under which the Russian soviet government grants concessions to foreigners, C. J. C. Quinn, secretary of the committee on foreign affairs of the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared that it was a "rather amazing fact that the Russian government has adopted the policy of according to foreign states and foreign enterprises exemptions from the general law and special rights which may be deduced to her own nationals."

"The great natural resources of Russia are the heritage of the Russian people," he said, "and we will allow for their interest. We will allow foreign capital to help us in the development of those resources which we possess or unexplored to develop ourselves, but we will give no monopolistic concessions. We will allow a reasonable, even a large profit, because we know capital will not otherwise come to our help. But if it does not want to come on this basis, we will do our best to develop our resources ourselves."

BILL M'GOWAN KNOCKED OUT BY FAY

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 18.—It took Harry Fay, Louisville light-heavyweight, just seven rounds to do what Young Strubling failed to do in 30. Strubling, who had been a 30-second knockout, was knocked out in the eighth. He knocked out Billy Fox, of Atlanta, after the latter boy had taken one of the most heart-breaking beatings ever doled out at Louisville.

McGowan, although defeated, will live for a long time in the hearts of the 1,500 persons who saw that fight. He was the only one of the winners who ever stepped into the ring here before. He was the first to show respect to the stomach which ended the fight, and he suffered eight knockdowns, all for a round of 30.

While the fight lasted, the crowd was on its feet every minute. The reaction was intense, gripping, nerve-racking. After the first knockdown, in the first round, fans wondered just men, and once knocked him down. Even after he was punch drunk, he backed Jay to a neutral corner and, after a short, hard right and left into this stomach, which caused the Louisville boy to win.

Jay looked better. He was in superb condition, and he boxed like a champion. If he keeps up the pace he set tonight, it won't be long before he will be at the top of the ladder.

Bobby to Play in Benefit Match

Albany, Ga., August 18.—Announcement was made here today that Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, former national open golf champion, would participate in the 16-hole match game of golf here next Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the Albany Educational society, which lends money to worthy boys and girls to enable them to secure college education. Bobby Jones' partner will be selected in a few days, it was announced, and the two will play two selected players from the Georgia-Florida Golf league—Sid Goss, of Albany, and Joe Trumbull, of Moultrie.

Wilson-Antley Battle To Draw

Birmingham, Ala., August 18.—Claude Wilson and Boots Antley, the latter of Columbus, Ga., fought ten rounds to a draw decision from three judges here tonight. Antley's feather-weight southern title was not at stake as Wilson failed to make the 125-pound limit when they weighed in.

CRACKERS WIN, 12 TO 1, SWEEPING BAR SERIES

Single G Still Ace King; Wins Circuit Free-for-All

North Randall, Cleveland, Ohio, August 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Coming back after his winning streak of Saturday, when rain caused a halt to the grand circuit program, Single G. W. B. Barcroft of 14-year-old world's champion pacer, showed his superiority by defeating three of the best pacers in training here today. Ed Allen, the Indianapolis reiner, and Single G. into the lead at the start today and he was never headed, pacing the first quarter in 29.4 seconds, the half in 1:00.25, three-quarters in 1:31.45, and the mile in 2:01.55.

Merriman, Thomas W. Murphy's gelding, got tired chasing the old pacer and was overtaken by Hal Mahone half-way down the home stretch. With Single G. ruled out Merriman had little trouble taking the consolation mile.

The second division of the 2:15 trot, also unfinished on Saturday, went to Rose D., which won both heats raced today. Saturday's mile went to Zoulan Man, which was never prominent today.

The first division of the 2:15 trot was declared finished and Hollywood Frisco, winner of the two heats Saturday, declared the victor.

Giants, in Rout, No Longer Like Drum Major Shy Band

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, August 18.—Strutting along at the head of the procession in the National League, so far in front that they were lost to the main body of the parade, the New York Giants during most of this season were like a drum major who has turned a wrong corner and gone his way alone. The rest of the team, however, were so in a solitary drum major. Yet they were not very interesting without a supporting troupe and the public began to evince disinterest in them.

In the last ten days the Giants have marched backward. The procession has almost caught up with the clientele is now being caused by the spectacle of a drum major being booted at every step by the next gentleman astride.

There is no doubt that the Giants thought themselves invincible or thereabouts when they looked back from their position ten full games ahead of the second place team and gizzled at the fuss that was going on between the Cubs, Dodgers, Braves and Reds for the trivial reason of getting even with the Giants. They have been told by their own manager, John McGraw, who knows every corner of the game, that they are a very superior team. In a training camp at Saratoga last spring they were commanded to conduct themselves as champions, as New York Giants and not as a second-rate team, as the Yankees, the Dodgers or the Reds.

Not a Knife-ender.

Why, the Giants lived in marble halls, they were required to change their dress several times a day, like the boys of Newport, and it was the boast of the club that they weren't a knife-ender on the entire record list. The Dodgers lived in a tenement, a few grades below a well-conditioned Mills hotel, and there was no ground ahead of them. The Giants must have regarded the Dodgers with a certain disdain had they seen them going to the cash-and-carry cafe in just any old clothes to eat out their ration allowance of $2.50 a day.

THE funniest line we have heard in public places has been at Shibe Park. Some of the remarks deserve a spot in sport literature.

The authors show no partiality; they are absolutely neutral. They direct their lines to visiting and home players alike. Some of them, it is true, are the ordinary stereotyped comments, but plenty of others show a degree of thought and observation that can come only from a mind no longer bothered by the position of the home team and the necessity of winning. Results have ceased to mean anything to the Philadelphia fans; they can devote all his time to thinking up smart cracks.

THERE are other things that set the Philadelphia ball lot. Recently, at Shibe Park, we took note of a number of unusual scenes.

In one section of the upper tier sat a young man. He took a keen interest in the game until the visiting team ran up a long lead. Then he tried to make himself comfortable. He took off his shoes and placed them on the seat in front of him and stretched his stocking feet over the seat adjoining. While in this restful position a boy, who likewise had lost interest in the happy-go-lucky behavior, saw the shoes and the stocking feet. He decided to act. Creeping along the aisle he managed to reach the shoes unseen and took them to the rear.

The boy was 50 feet away before the owner discovered what had happened. He chased the boy and the chase lasted for several minutes. Up and down aisles, across the rear, in front and in between ran the boy, a shoe in each hand, with the man in stocking feet madly trying to catch him. The chase was ended by the boy, who was tired of watching the man who was not trying to steal the shoes; he was only playing a joke. All parties concerned accepted his explanation, for there is rarely any real feeling displayed in the Philadelphia ball parks.

TRAVELERS LOSE AGAIN.

Mobile, August 18.—Mobile broke its losing streak today by defeating Little Rock, 7 to 1, in a game that was called in the eighth inning. The home team hit hard and taken out after the first inning. The visitors, however, were not so successful in the first inning to score a home run in the first inning to score Little Rock a run in the first inning.

CHARGES FIRPO WITH PERJURY

New York, August 18.—The Rev. William Shafe Case, of the New York Civic league, which has been investigating the circumstances surrounding the arrest of a man named Firpo, today swore to a warrant for the Argentine boxer's arrest on a charge of perjury, according to an announcement by the lawyer's attorney, Bernard H. Sandler, Mr. Sandler said the warrant would be served tomorrow.

The request for a warrant was made after a four weeks' investigation was disclosed, Mr. Sandler said, that Firpo had failed to tell the truth in regard to Blanca Lourdes Fiori, with whom he arrived last July on the steamship American Legion.

Mr. Sandler said an effort will be made to have Firpo deported before his scheduled bout with Harry Wills in Jersey City, September 11.

LEW TENDLER BEATS MARSH OF CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, Ohio August 18.—Lew Tandler, Philadelphia lightweight, earned a newspapermen's decision over K. O. Marsh, Cincinnati, in a ten-round boxing bout here tonight.

"Kid" Sullivan Retains Title

New York, August 18.—Steve F. ("Kid") Sullivan, of Brooklyn, junior lightweight title tonight in a fifteen-round bout with Vincent ("Pepper") Martin, of Brooklyn, at the Queensboro A. C., in Long Island City. Sullivan won the unanimous decision of the judges.

The titleholder outpointed his opponent from the start and had the best of almost every exchange in the 15 rounds of furious millings. There were no knock down, although Martin was forced to hang on to the ropes to save himself in the second. The challenger rallied in the fourth when he punished the champion relentlessly, but soon tired. Sullivan came in at the 130-pound limit and Martin was one pound lighter.

Martin was the sixth meeting of the two men.

The Giants met the Reds in Cincinnati Monday in the longest game of the season, losing 8 to 7 after 17 innings. With that result reckoned in the averages, they were three games ahead of the Pirates and their assurance of another world series was not so sure. It was their fourth defeat since they left here for the matter more gruesome, they had missed a chance to go forward while the Pirates were taking a half-rest-pitcher ward, for the Dodgers beat the Pirates in Pittsburgh 7 to 4. As the Cubs beat the Braves in Chicago, 6 to 1, none of the four leading teams in New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago or Brooklyn—changed positions.

Yanks Drawing Card.

New York has unfurled seven bolts of flannel since the war. The Giants won three pennants, the Yanks three times, the Dodgers once. These ceremonies and the trophies themselves are not as interesting as they used to be. The Yankees, who have been embattled all season, have more customers in New York than the Giants, who were apparently without serious competition. Not two weeks ago it was noted that the Yanks were conducting their ball games before small audiences and the observation was made that a city gets tired of a team that wins too easily.

It will be very fortunate for the owners of the Giants if they lose this year's pennant. It will be remembered that the Yanks, who won little or no profit from the world series of 1923 and 1924. They almost went so far as to say that the world series would be a disaster to them. This having been the case, the stockholders must be reassured by the recent conduct of the ball club.

The Yankees, who are in a situation considerably by defeating the White Sox in New York, 2 to 0. Joe Bush pitched the shutout. The Tigers were the Yankees' opponents, but they lost to the Senators in Washington and the Yankees' margin therefore is now 2-1-2 games. The Yankees are in a position to lead the league in the second place, almost tied with the Red Sox in Boston 3 to 2 and the Indians swamped the Athletics in Philadelphia 15 to 3.

Crackers Slugging.

The Crackers have worked hard during the last week to keep up their winning streak. The Birmingham bunched today to town last night with four consecutive victories. The Crackers, which may or may not mean something. The Birmingham crowd isn't especially prepossessing when viewed by baseball fans. The Crackers should have won their games.

THE way the Crackers look at the pitchers that Birmingham put in the box may hold the key to the Memphis series starting today. It may mean that the Crackers rolled up four consecutive scores of the last week because the boys have rubbed the dust out of their batting eyes. If they have, they have a good chance of damaging the Chicks considerably.

LOOKING UP.

Cracker fans are ready for a continuation of the Cracker winning streak in the Memphis games. They're solidly behind the home crowd. If you don't believe it, recall how much you've heard during the last week about the relative standing of the Crackers and the third-place Pelicans.

The Crackers are now only a jump and a half ahead of the Pelicans, although they've been winning four games in a row. But fans have lost sight of New Orleans as a menace to the second place Crackers to weigh and calculate on the chances of the Crackers as a menace to the league leaders. Cracker fans, like the Crackers, look up when there's the least excuse for it. We do mean that that the excuse for optimism is so slight. The Crackers have won several ball games since the fans started cheering their interest in New Orleans to Memphis, with the Crackers in between.

STIR UP CUT LOOSE.

"Pa" Stribling authorizes a yarn to the effect that W. L. left Johnson (Pa.) Tenn., where he knocked out J. H. Chubb of New York for Saratoga Springs to work out with Luis Angelo Firpo, in preparation for his fight August 27 with Paul Berlenbach. "Pa" Stribling meant what he said a few weeks back about letting W. L. cut loose.

This business of W. L. working out with Firpo, though, looks to us like a case where an underdog sends a 10-pound fish after a piece of bait. When a fellow like Firpo gets a sparring partner of the reputation of Stribling it's a sure bet that Firpo is not supposed to do any mauling. Firpo has shown outbursts of Argentine temper, however, but the world seems us out of letting any relatives we cared particularly for get into a ring with him. He might forget himself.

THE SUMMARY.

P. C. Nagels and L. Dailley defeated W. J. Newell and C. Merer, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 10-12, 6-1; W. Johnson and A. H. Chubb defeated J. Russell and J. A. McLaughlin Is Invincible As Mates Hammer Visitors; Memphis Opens Here Today

Discovering that the offerings of three Birmingham pitchers were very much to their liking, the Crackers launched an attack that had the visitors' interest and rang up their eighth consecutive win yesterday by a 12-to-1 score.

Scarpion Good, Rufus Clarke and Walker were the trio of the visiting batters to be pounded during the contest and the locals scored at will from the first inning until enough innings had been played to constitute a game.

While the Crackers were slugging their way nearer to Memphis, which was enjoying an off day, Hollis McLaughlin was holding the Barons in check with very much trouble. He allowed only six scattered hits during the course of the afternoon, while the Barons' only counter came on a double, an infield out, and a wild pitch. He kept the remainder of the Barons' hits scattered and was never in danger.

Crackers Sweep Series.

The victory yesterday gives the Crackers a clean sweep of the four-game series with the Barons, which team nine and a half games behind Memphis, who opens a three-game series here today.

Scarpion Good led the Cracker offense with three hits and three runs out of three official times at bat. Johnny Brock garnered a trio of safe knocks out of four trips. Burrus Hill and Krehmeyer secured a couple. The Barons' hits were divided through the team.

The Crackers also turned in another errorless game, played in jam-up style. The Barons had a couple of costly bobbles in the second inning which contributed to the Crackers' run-getting in this frame.

Little else remains to be told about the affair except how the runs were scored. The Crackers started out in the first inning with six counters. Zouler was a hit batsman. Good and Paschal walked, filling the bases. Burrus lifted a sacrifice fly to Brenner to score Zouler and allowing Good and Paschal to advance. Hillis singled to score Good and Paschal. Nioff grounded to Hartford, but Stewart dropped his throw and both runners were safe. Hartford led Krehmeyer's easy roller get through, allowing Hillis to score and Nioff to take third. He then had a good chance of damaging the Chicks considerably.

LOOKING UP.

Cracker fans are ready for a continuation of the Cracker winning streak in the Memphis games. They're solidly behind the home crowd. If you don't believe it, recall how much you've heard during the last week about the relative standing of the Crackers and the third-place Pelicans.

The Crackers are now only a jump and a half ahead of the Pelicans, although they've been winning four games in a row. But fans have lost sight of New Orleans as a menace to the second place Crackers to weigh and calculate on the chances of the Crackers as a menace to the league leaders. Cracker fans, like the Crackers, look up when there's the least excuse for it. We do mean that that the excuse for optimism is so slight. The Crackers have won several ball games since the fans started cheering their interest in New Orleans to Memphis, with the Crackers in between.

STIR UP CUT LOOSE.

"Pa" Stribling authorizes a yarn to the effect that W. L. left Johnson (Pa.) Tenn., where he knocked out J. H. Chubb of New York for Saratoga Springs to work out with Luis Angelo Firpo, in preparation for his fight August 27 with Paul Berlenbach. "Pa" Stribling meant what he said a few weeks back about letting W. L. cut loose.

This business of W. L. working out with Firpo, though, looks to us like a case where an underdog sends a 10-pound fish after a piece of bait. When a fellow like Firpo gets a sparring partner of the reputation of Stribling it's a sure bet that Firpo is not supposed to do any mauling. Firpo has shown outbursts of Argentine temper, however, but the world seems us out of letting any relatives we cared particularly for get into a ring with him. He might forget himself.

THE SUMMARY.

P. C. Nagels and L. Dailley defeated W. J. Newell and C. Merer, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 10-12, 6-1; W. Johnson and A. H. Chubb defeated J. Russell and J. A. Dabney 6-2, 6-3, 6-2; Hunter and Richards defeated Porter and Bidwell, 3-4, 8-6, 6-3, 6-0; Patterson and Pat O'Hara defeated D. Burr and D. Mather and K. Behr, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Second Round.

Niles, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2; J. H. Chubb defeated Lott and Pare, 8-10, 8-6, 6-3, 6-2; White and Thalheimer defeated Rice and Brugnon, 9-7, 7-5, 13-11; H. C. Johnson and J. H. Chubb defeated Hockmeyer and Cameron, 6-4, 10-8, 6-2; M. L. Liano and W. J. Foster defeated M. Gallagher and R. McElvany, 4-6, 6-1, 12-10, 6-2; G. P. Gardner and H. Guild won by default from G. R. Hennessey and S. Hardy defeated L. Johnson and M. T. O'Hara, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2; H. Snodgrass and W. Westbrook defeated L. Wei and P. Kong, 6-0, 7-5, 6-1. R. N. Williams and Washburn defeated White and J. H. Chubb, 6-2, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0; Brookes and Schlesinger defeated Fenno and L. Williams, 7-5, 6-8, 9-7, 8-6.

Major Thurmond, captain of the British international polo team, short-tempered in the betting on the matches of Americans, but by no means a whipped aggregation yet, landed in New York Monday and will play a long island tournament, attendees, ponies and baggage included.

Charges Firpo With Perjury

New York, August 18.—The Rev. William Shafe Case, of the New York Civic league, which has been investigating the circumstances surrounding the arrest of a man named Firpo, today swore to a warrant for the Argentine boxer's arrest on a charge of perjury, according to an announcement by the lawyer's attorney, Bernard H. Sandler, Mr. Sandler said the warrant would be served tomorrow.

The request for a warrant was made after a four weeks' investigation was disclosed, Mr. Sandler said, that Firpo had failed to tell the truth in regard to Blanca Lourdes Fiori, with whom he arrived last July on the steamship American Legion.

Mr. Sandler said an effort will be made to have Firpo deported before his scheduled bout with Harry Wills in Jersey City, September 11.

LEW TENDLER BEATS MARSH OF CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, Ohio August 18.—Lew Tandler, Philadelphia lightweight, earned a newspapermen's decision over K. O. Marsh, Cincinnati, in a ten-round boxing bout here tonight.

"Kid" Sullivan Retains Title

New York, August 18.—Steve F. ("Kid") Sullivan, of Brooklyn, junior lightweight title tonight in a fifteen-round bout with Vincent ("Pepper") Martin, of Brooklyn, at the Queensboro A. C., in Long Island City. Sullivan won the unanimous decision of the judges.

The titleholder outpointed his opponent from the start and had the best of almost every exchange in the 15 rounds of furious millings. There were no knock down, although Martin was forced to hang on to the ropes to save himself in the second. The challenger rallied in the fourth when he punished the champion relentlessly, but soon tired. Sullivan came in at the 130-pound limit and Martin was one pound lighter.

Martin was the sixth meeting of the two men.

"No," said Reggie, glumly.
"Neither Pearl nor the diamond?"
"Naw," said Reggie, with disgust, "it was the mother-of-pearl!"

The Green Flame.

The following incident, reports A. J. M., took place in the Peace river country where the bush fires have been very bad this summer.

Our correspondent dropped in on Mr. V., and casually asked him where his hired man was. "He's out fighting the fire," answered Mr. V.

Knowing that the man was just over from the other side of the pond, A. J. M. asked him if he thought he was safe, and in no danger of being burned.

"Daws not," was the reply. "He's too darn green to burn."

He Died With His Boots On.

The Great Humorist lay dying. His face was pale; his breath came in protesting gasps; his pulse fluttered. The famous specialists cast significant glances between themselves.

"There's—no hope?" he asked them. Their heads shook, sadly and in unison: "No hope."
The Great Humorist beckoned to me.

"Jim, old boy," he whispered in my ear, "bring me—my—shoes, please." I carried them to the dying man's side. Weakly he thrust his feet from beneath the covers.

"Put them on for me, Jim," he begged, growing visibly weaker from the effort of speech.

I saw that the end was near. To humor him I drew the shoes over his feet. He lay back, satisfied.

Unable to restrain my curiosity, even in the presence of death, I asked him: "Why did you have me do that?"

"So I won't stub my toes when I kick the bucket," the Great Humorist smilingly replied. Then, with a quiver, he died.

Truly, he died with his boots on.—R. Carmen Davis.

White Fang

BY JACK LONDON

The family was on the porch, taking the cool of the afternoon, when White Fang arrived. He came in among them, panting, covered with dust.

"Weedon's back," Weedon's mother announced.
The children welcome White Fang with glad cries and ran to meet him.

have a dread that he will turn upon them unexpectedly some day." Growing savagely, White Fang sprang out of the corner, overturning the boy and the girl. The mother called them to her and comforted them, telling them not to bother White Fang.

"A wolf is a wolf," commented Judge Scott. "There is no trusting one."

"But he is not all wolf," interposed Beth, standing for her brother in his absence.

"You have only Weedon's opinion for that," rejoined the judge. "He merely surmises that there is some strain of dog in White Fang; but as he will tell you himself, he knows nothing about it. As for his appearance—"

He did not finish the sentence. White Fang stood before him, growling fiercely.

"Go away. Lie down, sir!" Judge Scott commanded.

White Fang turned to the love-master's wife. She screamed with fright as he seized her dress in his teeth and dragged on it till the frail fabric tore away. By this time he had become the center of interest. He had ceased from his growling and stood, head up, looking into their faces. His throat, worked spasmodically, but made no sound, while he struggled with all his body, convulsed with the effort to rid himself of the incommunicable something that strained for utterance.

"I hope he is not going mad," said Weedon's mother. "I told Weedon I was afraid the warm climate would not agree with an Arctic animal."

"He's trying to speak, I do believe," Beth announced.

At this moment speech came to White Fang, rushing up in a great burst of barking.

"Something has happened to Weedon," his wife said decisively. "They were all on their feet now and White Fang ran down the steps, looking back for them to follow. For the second and last time in his life he had barked and made himself understood.

After this event he found a warmer place in the hearts of the Sierra Vista people, and even the groom whose arm he had slashed admitted that he was a wise dog even if he was a wolf. Judge Scott still held to the same opinion, and proved it to everybody's dissatisfaction by measurements and descriptions taken from the encyclopedia and various works on natural history.

The days came and went, streaming their unbroken sunshine over the Santa Clara valley. But as they grew shorter and White Fang's second winter in the southland came on, he made a strange discovery. Collie's teeth were no longer sharp. There was a playfulness about her nips and a gentleness that prevented them from really hurting him. He forgot that she had made life a burden for him, and when she disported herself around him he responded solemnly, striving to be playful and becoming no more than ridiculous.

One day she led him off on a long chase through the back pasture and into the woods. It was the afternoon that the master was to ride, and White Fang knew it. The horse stood saddled and waiting at the door. White Fang hesitated. But there was that in him deeper than all the law he had learned, than the customs that had moulded him, than his love for the master, than the very will to live of himself; and when, in the moment of his indecision, Collie nipped him and scampered off, he turned and followed after. The master rode alone that day; and in the woods, side by side, White Fang ran with Collie, as his mother, Kiche, and old One Eye had run long years before in the silent northland forest.

CHAPTER 5.

It was about this time that the newspapers were full of the daring escape of a convict from San Quentin prison. He was a ferocious man. He had been ill-made in the making. He had not been born right, and he had not been helped any by the moulding he had received at the hands of society. The hands of society are harsh, and this man was a striking sample of its handiwork. He was a beast—a human beast, it is true, but nevertheless so terrible a beast that he can best be characterized as carnivorous. (Continued Tomorrow)

Clubs as Units Being Inscribed On Tallulah Falls School Roll

Bringing in boundless new enthusiasm, individual clubs of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs Monday threw their support to the Tallulah Falls Industrial school campaign. Many of the leaders in these clubs have been actively engaged in soliciting funds, but not resting on this work have gone into the campaign as units to aid in the drive for $20,000. The $100 roll was constantly being added to Monday and several large gifts were in immediate prospect.

Word was received in Atlanta Monday that the Southern Woman's Club of Chicago will have a lawn fete at the home of Mrs. Edgar F. Alden next Saturday for the benefit of the Tallulah Falls school. The fete will consist of a box lunch supper at 6 o'clock and dancing and cards at 8 o'clock. The committee in charge is composed of the following: Mrs. John R. Lewis, chairman; Mrs. P. C. Bloomer, president of the club; Mrs. Louis W. Hall, Mrs. Walter M. Smith, Mrs. John T. Ingold, Mrs. Utric Atkinson, Mrs. John A. Beatty, Mrs. Fred C. Furry, Mrs. George E. Cady, Mrs. Henry Popperfuss, Mrs. E. L. Mountfort, Mrs. Walter E. Hooper, Mrs. Robert C. Moss and Mrs. A. O. Simpson.

One of the first of the Atlanta clubs to respond to the call was the Georgia Tech Woman's club, of which Mrs. J. Bonar White is president. In responding Mrs. White said: "My first thought when I think of Tallulah is this: 'Build a greater Tallulah—your build a greater Georgia.' I am sending you this thought because it is the old, old story of the chain being as strong as its weakest link and we cannot expect a real 'Empire State' if we do not get to our rural population."

Another was the woman's auxiliary of the Railway Mail association, of which Mrs. A. R. Young is president.

dent. "My vision of the Tallulah Falls school is not only the building of better homes for mountain people, but the building of character that will further Christianity in years to come," she said.

Mrs. Sam Jones, president of the War Mothers, was another who responded quickly to the call of Tallulah, bringing with her the aid of her association. "Tallulah Falls represents the greatest field in which we have to work," Mrs. Jones said. "There is nothing so great for Georgia to do as this work of educating the boys and girls of the state. We owe a double debt to the people of these Georgia mountains for they have been neglected. What we do there now will be felt a thousand years from now."

Mrs. Joseph Smith, head of the Kirkwood Civic league, was just as firm in her belief in the mountain school. "The men and women of Kirkwood," she declared, "have seen the vision of what Tallulah Falls will mean to the state of Georgia. And we are going to respond accordingly. Tallulah Falls must be given the money it needs to do the work that can not be valued in money."

The $100 roll announced Monday had on it the following names: Mrs. J. F. MacDougald, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lively, Robert Martin, Mrs. Andrew Stewart, Atlanta Child's home, through Mrs. Cecil Stockard, president; Buckeye Woman's club, through Mrs. E. M. Heibig, president; Needlework Guild, through Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president; North Peachtree Road Woman's club, through Mrs. Gordon Burnett; Kirkwood Civic league, through Mrs. Joseph Smith, president; and the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce, through Miss Susan Wailes, chairman.

It is alleged Tenenbaum charged more than 5 per cent a month on a loan on a watch.

Artistry of Many Countries Rivaled by Atlanta Expert

Miss Susan McClellan, whose artistic and mathematical genius finds expressions through various channels in which she exhibits equal skill.

BY MRS. M'CORD ROBERTS.

Precision is rarely the dominant characteristic of a woman and by that same token when it is the keynote of a woman's character it places her apart from the everyday person and gives her a place in the group of people who leave a definite impression upon the minds of those with whom they come in contact. Miss Susan McClellan is quickly labeled interesting and unusual, though analysis of the reason for this immediate impression doesn't arrive at precision for the answer until after one has seen the exact artistry with which she utilizes her faculties and makes of the products of her small skillful hands works of creative art.

For Miss McClellan paints in oil and water colors perfect specimens of Japanese decorative art or just for diversion touches a piece of glass with a tiny brush leaving an indelible record a spray of apple blossoms which converts that glass into a lovely product of artistic work as over the far-famed Venetian charges a fabulous price to send over to us—with the duty added on.

Firing of paint brushes as a means of expressing her love for beauty those same skillful hands are put to the fashioning of a handbag, which is touched here and there with the neat brush after the needle has secured the fabric to the frame—and the product of this union of precision and art becomes an "imported bag" sold for a goodly sum in some shop elsewhere in the United States. Imported that bag truly is, as the dealers declare, who gladly buy these articles, but not imported over the border. And this same fate is awarded the costume chains which Miss McClellan makes and which plausibly fascinate the designer by the endless possibilities in color and shape they offer. Beads from all over the world go into these costume chains and the pendant which finishes each is a grouping into a pleasing ornament of the many faced vari-colored bits of glass and metal Miss McClellan has strung into a thing of beauty. Even the lace-makers of Europe have nothing on this dainty, painstaking little southern lady, for her shuttle work and needlework are to her but another outlet for an urge to create. Very articles of handcraft. Knitting, too, profits by the creation of a new pattern, worked out with mathematical precision and developed in a fetching sweater.

But why does she do all this handwork when she is amazingly capable in another direction—for one learns with almost a shock that she has a cold and rigid profession at the tip of her fingers as well as skill in developing exquisite and decorative feminine crafts. Well, because she is both very precise and very feminine and the latter quality flows through the dainty, precise finger work which sells as rapidly as she completes it, and the precision which is the dominant characteristic finds its broadest field in cost accounting, that mathematical occupation in which precision is the beginning and the end of service.

During the world war Miss McClellan was principal clerk of the order receiving section of the army quartermaster retail stores at Atlanta and the captain of the O. M. corps wrote afterward officially that "it was largely due to her cooperation and efficiency that in the handling of the order on receiving section approximately 36,000 orders to the value of over $2,000,000 were handled without a single loss."

The First Gray Hair!

Some people are apt to mourn the first gray hair as the warning of age, forgetting that the first eye blur is much more serious.

Eye blurs are signals for help. To ignore these warnings may result seriously. Glasses are first aids to failing eyesight, and if worn in time will return the vision to normal.

Give serious consideration to this first eye blur. Wear Hawkes' Glasses and keep your eyes young.

MARTIN AMOROUS, FAMOUS DESIGNER, DESCRIBES BEAUTY'S FORMAL DRESS

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles written for The Constitution by Martin Amorous, Jr., famous Atlanta designer, who is creating gowns for "Miss Atlanta's" journey to Atlantic City to compete in the national beauty pageant for the title of "Miss America." The other articles will appear in the woman's section of Wednesday's and Thursday's issues of The Constitution.

BY MARTIN AMOROUS, JR.

All my life I have dreamed of designing gowns for "Miss Atlanta"—meaning every girl and matron—and now I am about to realize my dream in part.

"Miss Atlanta," in the person of Miss Estelle Bradley, represents all the beautiful girls—and there are plenty of them in Atlanta.

The skill of a designer is shown best to advantage when designing for someone whose figure is not so perfect as "Miss Atlanta's," for it is the designer's business to study the good points as well as the little defects of the figure, to cover up points that are not exact, and to emphasize the good points.

Too Little Attention to Type

The majority of women pay too little attention to their own type in selecting a gown or hat. Just because a woman happens to like a certain style or color, she seems to think it will look good on her, and immediately she purchases it and after wearing it two or three times she is either tired of it or sees that it isn't becoming to her.

A well-designed and well-made dress suited to the personality of the wearer makes her feel like a certain style or color, she seems to think it will look good on her, and immediately she purchases it and after wearing it two or three times she is either tired of it or sees that it isn't becoming to her.

People have worn some of my gowns for several seasons without remodeling, and they still say they get just as much, if not more, pleasure in wearing them and get more compliments on them as they did when the dresses were new.

These are a few of the principles on which I go to the women of Atlanta to be a help to them in their problem. And the problem is a weighty one, for rich and poor alike—the problem of being well dressed.

Fitness of Dresses

The occasion to which the dress is to be worn is very important. To be well dressed at all times one need not have a great many clothes. What is needed in Atlanta that I call well dressed at all times I know have very few.

Neck Line Vital

As to the matter of length of skirt and neck, I have a few words to say. "Miss Atlanta" was selected. It is very important for a neck line to be just exactly right. The higher the neck line on a very short girl, the taller she looks; and for the tall girl, if she has a good-looking back and shoulders, there is nothing more beautiful than the low neck.

With the 1924 "Miss Atlanta," designing was an easy matter, for her exquisite back and shoulders should be shown, and there is nothing vulgar or ugly in displaying a good back in an evening dress.

There is, however, nothing so vulgar or disgusting as a bony or ugly back. That is why so many people think it is indecent to wear low-neck evening gowns.

The same principle applies to the length of a dress. If one has good-looking ankles and legs, she can wear a comparatively short dress, but otherwise she should be covered up as much as possible.

Balks at Paris' Edict

I have decided to make the evening dress ankle-length, although the new styles from Paris are much shorter. A really lovely dress is more graceful and becoming when it is long. The length of a skirt should be governed by the type of the dress.

There were other designs I had drawn in case "Miss Atlanta" had been a tall girl who would wear the more stately lines, but after seeing her I feel sure that my choice of the "Georgia peach" is the best suited to her figure and personality.

I cannot go into all types of figures in these articles, for we are dealing with the perfect figure that can wear almost any line. This, of course, then, care must be taken to make dresses striking and well-fitted, even with the ideal type.

Tomorrow I will describe "Miss Atlanta's" traveling dress, which is to be the most original and striking of the three dresses.

in which he was riding with a friend and a Long Street Monday afternoon. He was taken to a private hospital, where it was found that his injuries were not serious.

Higgins suffered minor injuries when a broken radius rod caused him to lose control of his jitney bus, which crashed into a water plug at South Pryor street, near the intersection of 119 Peachtree avenue and W. A. Taylor, of 147 Bankhead avenue.

Only eight drivers were fined in recorder's court during the day, three for speeding, the same number for reckless driving, and two for violating traffic ordinances. Fines aggregated $108.

Twenty-four new cases were made by police Monday, 12 motorists being arrested for violating traffic ordinances, eight for speeding, two for violating the dinner hour law, one for reckless driving, and one for operating an automobile while intoxicated.

Tweil was hurt when his machine collided with another automobile on Marietta street near North Avenue early Monday night. E. C. Hammond, of Howell Mill road, and W. O. Wietig, of 72 1/2 West street, were arrested after the crash by Patrolmen Whaley and Lansen, and are held on charges of suspicion. Hammond is said to have admitted that he was driving the car which struck Tweil's, but Wietig denied that he knew anything of the accident.

Faves and Brutts suffered severe cuts and bruises when their machine overturned on the Roswell road near Buckhead at midnight Monday. The men stated that the accident occurred when Faves, who was driving, was blinded by lights of an approaching machine, and temporarily lost control of the car. They were taken to Grady hospital in the ambulance of Awtry & Lowndes.

New York, August 18.—Publication of another private report, pointing to a crop of more than 13,000,000 bales, led to further general selling in the cotton market today. Prices made new low ground for the movement, October declining to 25.34 or 78 points from Saturday's closing quotation and 463 from the high price of last month. October closed at 25.55, with the general market closing irregularly at a net decline of 48 to 100 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 2 to 18 points under continued selling, which has been in progress at the close of last week. Bearish sentiment was encouraged by relatively easy cables and a favorable view of over-summer weather reports. There was considerable covering, however, and some buying, believed to be for continental trade account. This steadied the market after the first rush of selling, but rallies of 15 or 20 points from the low were followed by a renewal of offerings and the pressure became more active after publication of a private report placing the condition at 98.8 and the indicated yield at 13,340,000 bales. There also was a good deal of bearish comment on the detailed weather reports, showing further rain in Louisiana, Arkansas and northern Texas, and southern selling appeared to be more active in the late trading.

The break extended to 24.68 for December and 24.60 for January, making a net decline of 73 to 78 points on the active positions, but the close was 20 or 25 points up from the lowest on covering.

Another set of private reports today placed the condition at 64.9 and the indicated yield at 12,828,000 bales, but the average of the several reports so far issued has been a little over 13,000,000.

Port receipts today 4,240 U. S. S. port stocks, 200,209. Exports 19,549, making 88,008 so far this season.

SPOTS IN NEW ORLEANS.
New Orleans, August 18.—The cotton market developed a weak tone during the greater part of today, and prices moved away under persistent liquidation and short selling, with no rallies worth mentioning until active trading resumed, showing losses of nearly $4.00 a bale.

Good rally in the late trading due to trade buying frightened shorts into covering and caused a rally of about $1.50 a bale. The market was more than due at the time American markets opened, near deliveries there being not far from 100 penny points. The market rallied slightly, October trading at 25.22 and December at 25.00. These levels, although 10 to 11 points under Saturday's close, proved to be the highs of the day. The decline which followed carried October down to 24.45 and December to 24.44, or 87 points below the previous close. There was a recovery in the late trading and the market closed at 24.68 for October and 24.60 for December, or 73 to 78 points below the previous close.

The decline was due largely to crop view of traders, which was also the cause of weakness in Liverpool assigned by cables. Recent private reports in advance of the bureau, due at the end of the week, place the crop mostly above 13,000,000 bales, and there was a strong private report today that a prominent New York bureau had indicated crop 14,000,000 bales.

A crop warning for a disturbance of moderate intensity in the Caribbean sea near Dominica was ignored at the time but it helped to influence the final rally owing to fears that it might bring rains to the eastern belt.

New York, August 18.—Publication of another private report, pointing to a crop of more than 13,000,000 bales, led to further general selling in the cotton market today. Prices made new low ground for the movement, October declining to 25.34 or 78 points from Saturday's closing quotation and 463 from the high price of last month. October closed at 25.55, with the general market closing irregularly at a net decline of 48 to 100 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 2 to 18 points under continued selling, which has been in progress at the close of last week. Bearish sentiment was encouraged by relatively easy cables and a favorable view of over-summer weather reports. There was considerable covering, however, and some buying, believed to be for continental trade account. This steadied the market after the first rush of selling, but rallies of 15 or 20 points from the low were followed by a renewal of offerings and the pressure became more active after publication of a private report placing the condition at 98.8 and the indicated yield at 13,340,000 bales. There also was a good deal of bearish comment on the detailed weather reports, showing further rain in Louisiana, Arkansas and northern Texas, and southern selling appeared to be more active in the late trading.

The break extended to 24.68 for December and 24.60 for January, making a net decline of 73 to 78 points on the active positions, but the close was 20 or 25 points up from the lowest on covering.

Another set of private reports today placed the condition at 64.9 and the indicated yield at 12,828,000 bales, but the average of the several reports so far issued has been a little over 13,000,000.

Port receipts today 4,240 U. S. S. port stocks, 200,209. Exports 19,549, making 88,008 so far this season.

SENATOR COLT DIES FROM HEART TROUBLE

Bristol, R. I., August 18.—United States Senator LeBaron B. Colt died at 5 o'clock this morning. He had been ill for about two weeks from heart trouble, and nephritis.

Senator LeBaron Bradford Colt, republican senator from Rhode Island since 1913, was born in Dedham, Mass., June 25, 1846. After graduation from Yale in 1868 and study of law course at Columbia he practiced in New York.

In 1873 he married Mary Louise Ledyard, in Chicago, who died in 1922. Three daughters survive this union.

In 1875 the senator went to Bristol, R. I., to live. President Garfield appointed him a United States district judge in 1880 and in 1884 he became circuit judge. He served on the bench until his election to the senate.

Washington, August 18.—Senator Colt's death leaves vacant the chairmanship of the senate immigration committee, and may result in the elevation to that post of Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

Ranking next to Senator Colt among republican senators is Senator Clegg of South Dakota, but he has been defeated for renomination. Senator Johnson ranks after Senator Sterling.

SENATOR HARRIS TO MAKE ADDRESS IN MACON TODAY

Senator W. J. Harris will leave here early this morning for Macon, where he is scheduled to speak to the Georgia rural mail carriers at their annual convention.

Senator Harris will return to Atlanta Wednesday, going by way of Griffin, where he will make an inspection of the experiment station, and confer with officials concerning tests of the chemical warfare service cooperating with the Griffin station in killing the boll weevil by use of poison gases. The work is being done under an appropriation of $25,000 obtained by the Georgia legislature at the last session of congress. The experiment station was visited last

LANGLEY HEADS FLOYD-DAVIS-BRYAN CLUB

Constitution Bureau, Masonic Temple Annex, Phone 1069.

Rome, Ga., August 18.—(Special.) Lee J. Langley has been named by Clem Shaver, national democratic executive committee chairman, as head of the "Davis-Bryan Victory" club for this county. Plans to raise Floyd county's share of the campaign fund have been completed.

John W. Davis, candidate for president, and Charles W. Bryan, candidate for vice president, were the first to join Floyd County club, as the commission was accompanied by a personal check of $5 from each.

Floyd county citizens intend to do their part.

Rome Schools Open Sept. 1.

Rome, Ga., August 18.—(Special.) The Rome public schools will open Thursday, September 4, according to an announcement made by Superintendent B. F. Quigg.

The principal of Rome High school, H. Brewer, expects to return to Rome in about a week to take charge. New equipment has been installed in physics and chemistry laboratories to take the place of that which was destroyed in the fire.

Considerable repair work has been done on all Rome school buildings.

Home Takes Boy.
Rome, Ga., August 18.—(Special.) Billie Harwell, 2-year-old son of Bessie and Paul Harwell, has been sent to the Methodist Orphan's home. Mrs. Bessie Maitland Lawrence, juvenile welfare worker, took the boy to Atlanta. The Georgia legislature killed his wife and himself August 9.

The order placing the child in the home was signed by Ordinary Harry Johnson, after Mrs. Fannie Bedford, aunt of Mrs. Harwell, asked the court to allow her to adopt the child.

Jones Quits Race.
Rome, Ga., August 18.—(Special.) Representative J. P. Jones, of Floyd county, who made an announcement Saturday that he would run for reelection to the legislature, has definitely decided not to run. This leaves five in the race for representative.

Representative Lee J. Langley, Representative J. Scott Davis, Senator John Camp Davis, Judge Harper Hamilton and Paul Doyle.

The race for county commissioner remained unchanged and candidates for the legislature and for county commissioner have been invited by the Woman's Democratic club to address that body on Thursday afternoon at the municipal building.

AMERICAN BOY SCOUTS WIN AT COPENHAGEN

Copenhagen, August 18.—The American Boy Scouts were awarded the highest number of points for their participation in the international scout jamboree, which ended here yesterday, thus winning the prize cup offered by King Christian. The Americans scored 181 points, against 172 for the British Scouts, who took second place. The award is unanimously endorsed by the newspapers today.

The Politiken remarks that when the king reviewed the scouts yesterday "the Americans for the first time saluted with their flag, which was not even lowered at the review by Sir Robert Baden-Powell."

The king was apparently disappointed that the Americans' cheerleader, MacBeth, did not jump into the air and display his wonderful yelling, continues The Politiken, which adds that MacBeth himself remarked: "We Americans after all were a wee bit shy in the presence of a real live king."

SIX FIRST PLACES WON BY SCOUTS.

New York, August 18.—America's Boy Scout troop, which received the largest number of points in the international jamboree in Copenhagen, won first place in canoeing, obstacle racing, beach volleyball, horseback riding, running and first aid, according to cablegrams received at national headquarters here today.

The 56 members of the troop, who were selected from 28 states and Hawaii, will be house guests of prominent Danish citizens for a week and then will travel through Germany, Holland, Belgium and France, sailing from Cherbourg, August 30. A welcome is being planned for their arrival here September 6 or 7.

APATHY REIGNS ON PRIMARY EVE IN MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., August 18.—On the eve of the democratic state primary, the indications are that not more than two-thirds of a normal vote will be polled. Very little interest has been shown during the canvass, and as the day of election approaches, there is no sign of enthusiasm in any section of the state.

The race for United States senator between Senator Pat Harrison and former Governor Earl Brewer is the outstanding event. Governor Brewer has made a close canvass of the state, while Senator Harrison has made less than a half dozen speeches. Partisans of Senator Harrison claim that he will carry the state by the large proportionate majority ever given any candidate. This, however, is not conceded at Brewer headquarters where Brewer's election is confidently predicted.
